Computer Science students win Telecom awards

Peter Asquith

TELECOM Australia inaugurated the Telecom Student Innovators Awards this year, in conjunction with the major Artifical Intelligence Conference, IJCAI '91.

The awards were presented by the Head of Telecom Research Laboratories, Harry Wragge, during the conference in Sydney on August 26.

The Department of Computer Science had two entrants for the awards. Peter Asquith and Bernhard Humm, who are undertaking MSc(Hons) and PhD respectively.

Both Peter and Bernhard were chosen among the top 10 winners and were able to attend the prize giving ceremony in Sydney.

The awards are seen as a recognition of the Department's research in intelligent systems.

Wollongong to train airline managers

WOLLONGONG's Centre for Information Technology Research will become a major participant in the world's airline telecommunications and information services industry.

The Centre is involved in a project to develop computer-based training for the Societe Internationale de Telecommunications Aeronautiques (SITA) – a world-wide airlines co-operative.

The project will train network managers for the world's largest private telecommunications network, which runs 24 hours a day servicing world aviation.

Funded jointly by SITA, CITR and the NSW Education Training Foundation (ETF), the $725,000 project will develop specialised distance education, pioneering use of the SITA's international telecommunications network and personal computers.

Dr Ian Reinecke, head of CITR, based in the Illawarra Technology Corporation, will manage the joint development project with SITA's Sydney and Sophia Antipolis (south of France) offices.

The course will involve self-paced learning for SITA managers around the globe, who need to keep up to date with the latest technology to ensure effective service for the most deadline-dependent business in the world.

According to SITA's Sydney project co-ordinator, Beth Jackson, the largest private telecommunications network in the world has a long-standing reputation for quality and performance.

That reputation relies upon the skills of SITA's network management team.

"SITA's personnel must be equipped to provide customers with the best, most efficient service, in the face of stiff competition from the telecommunications carriers and other value-added service providers" Ms Jackson said.

"That means providing training on-the-job to update their knowledge and skills in a fast-changing technological field.

"This program will provide the expertise to keep track of

Modern Languages hosts tribute to Spain

IN the light of the Barcelona Olympics and Seville's Expo 92, the international community is dedicating 1992 to Spain and the Spanish presence in the world.

In anticipation of events and to commemorate the launching of Spanish language studies, the University of Wollongong's Department of Modern Languages, along with the Spanish Embassy's Education Office and the Wollongong City Gallery, is featuring a "Tribute to Spain".

The tribute begins September 20 with the official opening in the City's Gallery of an exhibit of reproductions of famous Spanish masterpieces from Madrid's Prado Museum.

The exhibit will be opened by the Consul General of Spain, Antonio Soler, and is scheduled to run until September 29.

On September 20 at 8pm, the Department of Modern Languages is hosting a performance of Spanish music and dance in the University's Student Union Hall. Admission is free.

The University Singers under David Vance and a host of solo performers will be featuring music by Victoria, Soler, Granados, Albeniz, Torroba and de Falla.

The program also includes a series of zarzuela arias and, as a finale, a flamenco dance group.

In addition, a Spanish Film Festival will be held in the Student Union Hall on September 23, 24 and 26 at 7.30pm. Again, admission is free and the films to be screened are: Armendariz's Tasio, Uribe's La muerte de Mikel and Garay's La Banera.

For advance copies of the program, contact the Department of Modern Languages.

technological and product developments, and at the same time help SITA's managers of the future to develop their personal skills."

The training program is being designed with users other than SITA and its membership in mind.

Australia's involvement in the development of the program will ensure that it better meets the anticipated training needs of this region, and SITA's involvement will provide access to an international market for the product of its collaboration with CITR, thanks to the support of the ETF.

Changing global shipping trends – the topic of centre seminar

WILL Singapore handle most of Australia's container trade to and from Europe in another decade?

Will Hong Kong tranship United States cargo to and from Brisbane or Sydney?

Will Fremantle, Adelaide and Brisbane be part of new intermodal networks for Australian foreign trade in 2001?

These questions were raised at a one-day seminar conducted by the Centre for Transport Policy Analysis of the Illawarra Technology Corporation.

The centre's Director, Dr Ross Robinson, pointed out that changes in global liner shipping would have considerable impact on Australia.

They would determine not only what shipping and port facilities Australia was likely to require within the next decade but also land-based transport infrastructure requirements.

Two key guest speakers at the seminar included Hans Peters, World Bank Principal, Trade and Maritime Industries, and John Bicknell, Managing Director of the Australian National Line Ltd.

Mr Peters, who has had close ties with the centre over a long period of time, raised some likely impacts on the reactions from shippers.

Mr Bicknell discussed how Australia's national flag carrier would respond to some of these changes.

Other speakers included Dr Keith Trace who examined changes in international shipping and Dr Robinson who discussed the dynamics of Asian maritime and port developments.

Dr John Zerby spoke on US shipping regulation legislation, while Dr Glen D'Este examined some of the implications of shipping changes for Australian ports and shippers.

The seminar was attended by representatives from the Australian National Maritime Association, Australian Chamber of Shipping, port authorities, foreign and Australian shipping companies and senior executives from government and industry.

The seminar was part of the centre's Executive Development Program designed to investigate relevant 'real world' operational and policy making problems and provided an outstanding basis for enhanced decision making by industry executives.

University Theatre

THE University Theatre (Building 40) was again left in a deplorable condition recently.

This has necessitated additional expenditure on cleaning.

The floor was littered with food remnants, paper planes and empty soft drink bottles.

There are hot food stains on the foyer carpet, initials painted on a writing tablet, and apparently some students have been taking a dog (not a guide dog) to lectures.

It is also clear from shoe stains on seats and backs that students have been climbing over rows of seats.

We have identified the relevant classes and the matter is being raised with those directly concerned.

All lecturing staff are reminded that if they find on arrival for a lecture that this or any other theatre is in an unacceptable condition they should, as soon as practicable after completing their lecture, advise Tony Clapham (ext. 3916) who will take appropriate action.
