PLANETARIUM MUST GET GREEN LIGHT

The President of the Planetarium Society, Mr. Glen Moore, said that the Planetarium project must get the green light from the State Government. "There are very few projects up for consideration by the Steel Cities Assistance Committee which have had a feasibility study done and are ready to implement now", he said. "The Planetarium is one of these".

"There are also very few projects before the Committee which would give Wollongong a facility unique in N.S.W.," he said. "The Illawarra Planetarium would be unique in N.S.W. and would attract large numbers of tourists and school children to the area."

Mr. Moore said that the Friends of the University had supported the Planetarium project with a grant of $1,200 and a letter of support as follows:

"The Board of the Friends has noted that the detailed planning that your Society has undertaken since 1979 has created a project that is a long way up the track in terms of the preliminary work that has to be completed before a project reaches take off point.

We believe that the Illawarra Planetarium feasibility study, which is virtually complete, indicates that this project is viable and capable of being implemented immediately.

We also believe that the State of New South Wales will benefit from the provision of the ultimate teaching aid in the field of science. It is a disgrace that such a facility, already available in Victoria and Queensland, is not available in the premier State.

The region deserves this facility because no other region has created the expertise, the community support and the self reliance shown by the Illawarra Planetarium Society. A planetarium in Wollongong would be in safe hands.

The Friends of the University stand ready to throw all their support behind the Planetarium project and we believe this would be the case with many other organizations, such as the Leisure Coast Tourist Association, the education sector, and the City Council."

The Illawarra Planetarium Society has begun a letter writing campaign which it hopes will influence the State Government on this important project.

Mr. Moore says that three overseas companies have offered travel support for further investigation of the project: these being Goto of Japan, Carl Zeiss of West Germany and Zeiss Jena of East Germany. The present support already exceeds $10,000.

The results reflect the University's growing prestige and its perceived accessibility to residents of the Macarthur Region.

The survey brought together information on a wide range of topics, from university preferences to the influence of parents on career choices.

It is the first study of its kind conducted in the region.

The research project will involve a follow-up survey during 1984 of the students who were questioned, to establish just what they have done this year.

UNIVERSITY OF WOLLONGONG SURVEYS MACARTHUR H.S.C. CANDIDATES

Senior high school students in the Macarthur region have expressed a keen interest in studying at the University of Wollongong.

Survey results recently released by the University's Schools Liaison Officer, Mr. Tom Moore, show that Wollongong ranks second only to Sydney University as the preferred institution for university study.

Wollongong was the first preference for potential C.A.E. students. The study was conducted in late 1983. It involved all H.S.C. candidates at schools in the Macarthur Region. In all almost 500 year 12 students responded to the survey.

Mr. Moore said that the study indicates a heightened awareness amongst school students of the advantages of studying at the University of Wollongong.

STAFF EXCHANGE PROGRAMME WITH VIETNAM

The University has agreed to encourage contact at all levels with Can Tho University in Vietnam through book gifts and staff visits and exchanges.

Dr. Healy of the History Department has provided the following background about Can Tho University.

"In the provincial city of Can Tho (Mekong delta, south Vietnam) I inspected the university and held lengthy discussions with the Rector (Professor Pham Son Khai), the Vice-Rector (Professor La Dong Minh), and a number of senior staff, especially the Dean of the Agronomy Faculty (Professor Tran Thuong Tuan). It struck me that establishing a special relationship between my university and theirs could facilitate the providing of carefully directed aid, be intellectually beneficial to staff and students in both institutions, and advance good relations between Australia and Vietnam (especially in the long term, through the influence of Australian academics on future Vietnamese leaders).

The city of Can Tho, with a population approaching a million, is the major centre of the vital Mekong delta region. Its present university was established in the 1960's (at about the same time as the Wollongong University College) and currently has some 4,550 students (only a few hundred less than the University of Wollongong). The university suffered serious disruption in the latter stages of the war, and presently shares with the country as a whole a chronic lack of funds and equipment essential for development: but it has a dedicated staff and a body of students of exceptional ability and determination. They want to improve and expand their institution so that it can make a major contribution to the reconstruction of the Mekong region.

At present they are getting some help (mainly in basic equipment) from the USSR, and a little teaching assistance from France (officially, via the temporary posting of a few lecturers) and from the U.S. Committee for Scientific Co-operation (privately, via the occasional guest lecturer and some library stock). This is all ad hoc. They would very much appreciate a continuing relationship with a similar institution elsewhere, even if this began and continued for a number of years on a very small scale.

Opportunities exist for co-operative aid in various branches of agronomy, economics, biology, engineering, soil physics, and the social sciences. This could be approached initially through short-term staff exchanges; then through the sending of postgraduate students from Can Tho to Wollongong; and later, possibly, through direct aid in Can Tho in the building of research equipment, the directing of research programmes, and adding stock (especially English-language science journals) to their library."

SPEED READING CLASSES

Speed reading classes will be held from 26-30 March in the Union Building from 6 - 8 p.m.

Enquiries to ext. 3782.

POLICY ON LECTURE TIMES FORMALIZED

Over the years the University has adopted an informal policy that lectures commence at 25 minutes to the hour and finish at 25 minutes past the hour - the object being to allow a reasonable changeover time for both students and staff.

The crowded conditions we are now experiencing together with some uncertainty among staff and students with respect to the convention, has necessitated the formal adoption of the policy.

Accordingly, the Vice-Chancellor has approved:

"That the University formally adopt and promulgate the policy that lectures should commence at twenty-five minutes before the hour and should conclude no later than twenty-five minutes after the hour."

ESTABLISHMENT OF A UNIVERSITY-WIDE ABORIGINAL FORUM

As staff may be aware, an informally organised "Aboriginal Education Interest Group" has been functioning within the University for some 18 months.

Initially formulated by staff of the then School of Education, the group has latterly attracted participation on a wider, more diverse front.

For the express purposes of extending this interest and involvement still further - necessarily, perhaps, beyond education - it is proposed to form a new university wide interest group.

It is envisaged that such a group would meet on a regular basis to address issues identified as relevant to the growth of Aboriginal involvement in the life of the university. As well, topics of general interest/relevance to the Illawarra Aboriginal community and beyond could be canvassed and, where practicable, appropriate research/inquiry instigated. Guest speakers, reports on research, inter-cultural enrichment field trips, conferences, paper presentations, etc., could form the activities-base for such an organisation.

We need the support of all interested persons.

The inaugural meeting was held on Wednesday, 21st March, 1984.

Enquiries to either Arthur Smith, Faculty of Education or Ron Witton, Centre for Multicultural Studies.

Equal Employment Opportunity Project

The staff of the E.E.O. Project is currently drafting two confidential questionnaires for distribution to all staff. These questionnaires, one demographic and one attitudinal, will provide much of the information necessary for the preparation of the University's Equal Employment Opportunity Management Plan, which is required under Part IXA of the N.S.W. Anti-Discrimination Act.

The Purpose Of The Survey

The E.E.O. questionnaire is intended to collect the following kinds of information:

- a demographic profile of the members of staff: sex, racial and ethnic origin, age, qualifications, length of service, etc.;
- information about staff members' work experience including access to training, to useful administrative experience, to promotion, and to research opportunities; and
- information about staff members' experience and assessment of procedures at the University, including possible instances of discrimination and harassment.

The Advantages Of Surveying

The advantages of collecting this kind of information by questionnaire, rather than by interviews or by perusing staff records, are several:

1. It gives individuals an opportunity to speak frankly from personal knowledge.
2. It provides data not available from staff records.
3. The information collected is up-to-date and reliable, whereas some staff records may be less comprehensive.
4. It provides items that can be related to one another for the purposes of analysis because they refer to a given set of individuals at a given point of time.

Statements made by respondents will be entirely confidential: the questionnaires will carry no identifying number and will not aim to identify individuals. They will be completed during normal working hours by all staff, both general and academic.

While completion of the questionnaires is voluntary, a high return rate is essential for the success of the E.E.O. Management Plan.

Staff wishing to discuss any aspect of the Project are invited to contact the Co-ordinator, Elizabeth Johnstone, on ext. 3917, or visit the Project Office in room 123, top floor of the Administration Building.

* * *

Because of the diversity of languages in use on Campus, translated copies of the survey may be available. Requests should be made directly to the E.E.O. Project Office, ext. 3917, by Monday 2 April 1984.

It would be appreciated if members of staff could bring this information to the attention of those members of staff who may prefer to have their questionnaire in a language other than English.

Any staff member who may require assistance in completing the questionnaire, for any other reason, should also contact the Project Office.

Book of the Week

From Chris Wilder, University Co-op Bookshop

MY BALGOWNIE by Frank Ryan

"My Balgownie" is local history at its best; full of original documents and letters, written by a resident with a deep attachment to the subject.

A small stock of the books is available at the bookshop.

I will let Frank Ryan speak of himself about his Balgownie.

"The natural beauty of the area is now lost and gone forever. The backdrop of the green beauty of the rain forest on the mountain range, with the fiery red of the flame trees in bloom, and the creamy white of the clematis in season are seen no more. The numerous tree ferns, clumps of maiden hair and fishbone ferns, with elk horns, stag horns and crows nests growing in the tops of very tall trees in the gullies reaching up for the sunlight, have also gone. The huge flocks of Wonga pigeons which arrived each year to feed on the fruits of the lilli pilli trees, the call of the whip bird and bell bird, white eyes, civies and the numerous varieties of finches are rarely seen now."

"The village itself was surrounded by lush green pastures and hills with many beautiful trees left standing. The numerous creeks of clear water which ran round and through the village all had beauty and those on the outskirts and at the foot of the mountain range had overhanging trees and lantana growing on the banks, also wild raspberries which were plentiful. In the creeks, where they were shallow, grew watercress which with the addition of salt and pepper, made a very tasty sandwich filling. All of these creeks, in the deeper spots, had quite a good stock of small native fish, civies, gudgeons and eels and armed with a cotton thread line and bent pin for hook and garden worm for bait, provided we lads with a great deal of amusement. In the deeper pools, in the summer time, we joined the fish and spent much time swimming in these holes. These simple pleasures which filled in the leisure hours of the boys of my generation are no longer available to the juniors of the present, as the creeks are either dried up now or contained in pipes. The open paddocks, where we could kick a ball about, or with kerosene tins for wickets, play a game of cricket with as much interest as the Don Bradmans of the day, are now built on and lost to them. Unfortunately this had led to a rush of junior vandalism among youngsters looking for 'something' to do. Clumps of brier roses grew in many paddocks and were a pretty sight when in bloom. The fields were also dotted at times with buttercups and native yams. The yams when dug up and washed tasted much like sweet potato and we ate, many not needfully, but more from a spirit of adventure. The buttercups also had a very useful purpose and one held under the chin in very bright sunlight, caused a yellow glow and proved that we liked butter. I do not recall anyone not liking butter when tested by this means."

"Along the edges of the creek in shady spots grew clumps of wild violets usually half hidden under ferns. The village lanes and streets had been constructed of local sandstone and so were all of a creamy yellow colour and very clean and colourful in appearance. Many ornamental trees had been planted by earlier residents and when in bloom the many coral, white cedar and flame trees gave a great splash of colour, contrasting as they did with the shiny green of the camphor laurels and the fine feathery green of the numerous peppercorn trees with their red berries in the season."
