TASC GOES INTERNATIONAL

Top Government officials from the six ASEAN nations and Australia gathered in Canberra last week to discuss science and technology policy.

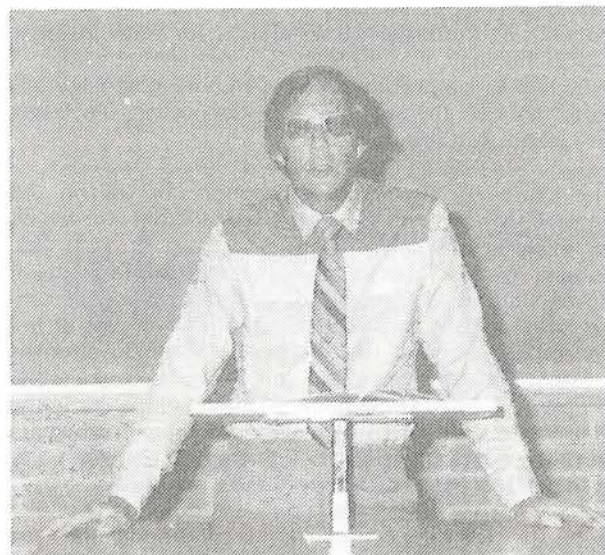

The high level consultative meeting, lasting all week, was conducted by the Centre for Technology and Social Change under the ASEAN Science and Technology Policy Training Program.

The ASEAN officials discussed the relationship between science and technology policy and social and economic development. The meeting considered ways of identifying, monitoring and eventually implementing policy relevant to the varying national contexts within ASEAN and Australia.

Program Director, Professor Ron Johnston, also a Director of the Centre for Technology and Social Change stated that the meeting was a first for Australia.

"Not only will it be an opportunity for a sharing of experiences in technology at the highest levels but the talks will open up further opportunities for closer co-operation within ASEAN and Australia in matters of science and technology policy and planning."

The other Director of the Centre, Professor Stephen Hill, and General Manager, Daniel Rowland, visited the ASEAN countries in December to ensure that the most senior science and technology policy advisers would attend the meeting. While the Centre has been responsible for developing the program, the co-operation of the Department of Science and of ADAB in its organisation will ensure its success".

Professor Ron Johnston, Director of TASC

Professor Ron Johnston added that the meeting was the first of a regular series to be held by the Centre in Australia over the next three years.

The Centre for Technology and Social Change is an independent, non-profit, research, consultancy and training organisation dealing with issues of technological change.

For further details contact Daniel Rowland at the Centre on (042) 270639.

MINISTER SPEAKS ON ARGS ISSUE

The Minister for Science, The Hon. Barry Jones, has written to the University concerning the present funding situation of the Australian Research Grants Scheme (ARGS). His statement is published below:

"Let me say at the outset that I share many of the concerns of the researchers who have written to me and I intend to continue to press for a greater Budget allocation to ARGS in 1985/86 and beyond. The level of funding for the Scheme is not ideal but with a 16.5% increase in funding for the 1984 grant year and 6.5% for 1985 the level of funding has, under this Government, kept ahead of movements in the CPI. Even this has obviously not helped alleviate researchers' frustrations.

"One area that causes special concern to me is the number of worthy projects that remain unfunded. In 1978, the ARGS was able to fund all worthy projects yet in 1985, some 732 remained unfunded. I hope this situation will not deteriorate further. The Committee has taken a number of positive steps to meet the situation and introduced program and nil grants for projects for the first time in 1985. The program grants enable one or more projects to be assessed as a program with increased certainty of funding for up to six years. The nil grant status for project grants is not as negative as it sounds for it provides the project with a special status which gives the applicant the option of making a shorter application in the following year rather than making a full initial application.

"There are a number of encouraging Government initiatives that I would also like to highlight. These are the establishment of the National Research Fellowships and the Biotechnology Grants Scheme. The Fellowships Scheme has already provided 100 three year fellowships and I will be pressing for its continuation. The Biotechnology Grants Scheme was designed to direct specific assistance to a critical growth area. Both schemes should provide an effective contribution to the nation's research effort.

"I realise that given the tight monetary situation facing the Government over the past two budgets, funding for research has clearly not been as great as everyone would have wished. I guess this goal is, in reality, unobtainable. I believe however it has received a significant allocation and repeat that I intend to continue to press for increased funding for basic research."

TECHNOLOGY CENTRE

The University of Wollongong welcomes the statement from Mr. Bedford, the N.S.W. Minister for Small Business and Technology, that the State Government has allocated $400,000 to support the University in meeting recurrent costs of the Centre, the Vice-Chancellor, Professor McKinnon, said recently.

The University also supports strongly his call on the Federal Government to release capital funds for which an in principle commitment was given a year ago. Sources suggest that discussions within the Federal Government are well advanced, but timing is now becoming an important issue. Quick action on the part of the Federal Government to support the State Government is essential if the enthusiasm and momentum of a growing band of small technology oriented companies in the Illawarra region are to be maintained. Some companies currently operating in the building which the University has leased to begin the Centre have already been invited by U.S. interests to locate there. Moreover, it is understood that the state contribution is conditional upon the availability of federal funds. All of this points to the urgent need for action on the part of the Federal Government.

The building leased by the University to begin the Centre is located off campus in central Wollongong. A number of companies are already operating within the Centre or have agreed to do so within a month. They include an automation and engineering applications company, a software company, an electronics group, an interactive communications group employing laser disc and micro-computer technology, Siromath, a mathematical modelling and operations research company, and a company providing technical services in the area of metals technology with particular emphasis on new developments in the use of metals.

Local unions, industry, the City Council and other groups have worked closely with the University to support and establish the Centre. Many groups in the region see the release of capital funds for a building and equipment under the steel cities package as a means of servicing an important local initiative aimed at helping revitalise local industry and creating new industry.

DISTINGUISHED VISITOR ON CAMPUS

Professor W.A. Runciman, Head of the Department of Solid State Physics, Research School of Physical Science, at the Australian National University, is joining the University for several weeks as a visiting professor in the Department of History and Philosophy of Science and the Centre for Technology and Social Change commencing March 11, 1985.

Professor Runciman is an internationally recognised and distinguished scholar and has authored some 67 scholarly articles.

The primary purpose of Professor Runciman's proposed visit to the University is to allow him to work with Dr. Jim Falk on a collaborative research project on the Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty, in preparation for the NPT review conference, which is to be held in Geneva in September, 1985.

Professor Runciman will also give some guest lectures in the course HPS311, 'War and Technology: strategies for war and peace', and HPS939, 'Technology and War'.

Professor Runciman will give a public seminar at the University on "Reviewing the Non-Proliferation Treaty". It will be held in Bldg. 18, Rm. 206 at 12.30 to 2.00 on 21st March.

All interested are encouraged to attend.

Dr. Alan Healy, Department of History

NATIONAL CONFERENCE ON VIETNAM

The Australia-Vietnam Society is sponsoring a national conference on the theme 'Vietnam: Ten Years On', to be held at the University of Wollongong over the weekend July 6-7 1985.

The conference will feature papers and panel discussion on various aspects of Vietnam's development since reunification in 1975. There will be sections devoted to international relations (including the Kampuchean question); political development; social, economic, and cultural problems; and relations between Vietnam and Australia.

The guest speaker at the conference dinner will be the foreign editor of the Sydney Morning Herald, Mr. Peter Hastings.

Almost all of the Australia-based academic experts on Indochina will be participating. These include Dr. David Marr of the Research School of Pacific Studies, ANU; Drs. David Chandler and Ben Kiernan of the Centre of Southeast Asian Studies, Monash University; Professor Colin Mackerras of the School of Modern Asian Studies, Griffith University; Dr. Michael Vickery of the Asian Studies Centre, University of Adelaide; and many others. It is hoped that Professor Pham Binh, Director of Vietnam's Institute of International Studies, will be able to come to Australia to participate.

The conference registration fee is $15 ($6 for students and pensioners); and the cost of the dinner is $20. Applications and money should be sent to the Secretary, AVS (Wollongong), P.O. Box 112, Thirroul, NSW 2515.

Further details are available from Dr. Healy of the History Department, ext. 3626.

THE UNIVERSITY RECURRENT BUDGET

by Melda Hannam

The 1985 Budget is now in place, and the preparation of the Draft 1986 Preliminary Estimates is commencing. The level of CTEC funding for the 1985-87 Triennium amounts to:

1985	1986	1987
$29,344,000	$31,021,000	$31,859,000

With careful planning, this funding provides for new academic and support staff positions during the period. The anticipated staff increase for campus is:

	1985	1986	1987
Academic Staff	25	18	15
Support Staff	11	10	7

The level of housekeeping for 1985 has been improved to provide increases in real terms for campus. The housekeeping fund per category for 1985 improved to the amount listed below:

Category 1	$370 per student load
Category 2	$250 per student load
Category 3	$125 per student load
Category 4	$ 65 per student load

The improvements provided in the 1985 Budget should overcome many of the financial difficulties encountered during 1984. The Draft 1986 Budget will aim to maintain the improvements effected in 1985.

Letters

27 Waterloo Rd., Bedford MK 40 3 PQ
26 February, 1985

Dear Sir,

I shall be visiting Australia on an Australian studies visiting fellowship in July 1985 and I am anxious to arrange a house and car exchange for all or part of the period July - October. I work at the Open University in Milton Keynes but my house is in Bedford and is convenient for Milton Keynes, London or Cambridge (35-50 minutes to each).

I would be grateful if you could advertise my needs and put me in touch with anybody you know of who is looking for accommodation in this area during the period concerned. Failing that it would be helpful if you could advise me as to the availability of rented family accommodation.

Yours faithfully, Margaret Kiloh.

* * * * *

Dear Sir,

A phone call to the Counsellor's office will verify that a course for non-assertive people has been arranged, but with the discriminatory restriction that, while both assertive and non-assertive females will be admitted, no males, assertive or not, will be allowed to participate.
A serious question arises whether such discriminatory practices should be allowed to proceed with university resources, in view of the anti-discrimination legislation.

Yours sincerely,
Phil de Lacey,
Faculty of Education

* * * * *

Dear Sir,

In the course of their operation, universities are required to accord with a whole range of legal requirements, one of which is the provision of equal opportunity for employment. But why is it necessary to maintain an expensive full-time office on campus to oversee equal opportunity provisions, yet not other offices to oversee other legally-required processes; for example, with all the very many photocopiers in constant use, we have no full-time Copyright Conformity Officer; nor a full-time external Auditing Officer.

Yours sincerely,
Phil de Lacey
Faculty of Education

Ed. The appointment of a full-time E.E.O. Officer is required by Government legislation.

Equal Employment Opportunity Project

Copies of the comments from Questionnaire 2 of the Equal Employment Opportunity Survey will be available in the EEO Unit from Monday. As there was such a strong response to questionnaire and people commented freely and frequently the documents are very large. To minimise the cost of making the comments available a small number of copies only have been produced. Copies can be borrowed from the EEO Unit. Also copies have been sent to Faculty Chairs for circulation among member departments. Hope you find the comments informative and interesting.
