STUDENT NUMBERS INCREASE IN AUSTRALIAN UNIVERSITIES

One of the five meetings of the year of the Australian Vice-Chancellors' Committee (AVCC) took place at The University of Wollongong on Tuesday March 15.

A significant factor emerging from the meeting was that enrolments at Australian universities have increased, with some institutions reporting a rise in student numbers of over ten per cent.

Based on a preliminary survey by the Australian Vice-Chancellors' Committee, the figures show that there continues to be strong demand across the country for higher education.

Some institutions have reported a trend away from part-time to full-time enrolments and a healthy demand for science, engineering and commerce courses.

The increase in numbers partly reflects the Federal Government's decision to fund extra places, and the decision by the Victorian Government to continue to fund additional places.

The figures are preliminary and the universities must wait till the official Census date of April 30 before they can produce final numbers.

The Chairman of the AVCC, Professor John Scott, has said the growth was encouraging, given the Federal Government's commitment to expanding the higher education system.

But he said it was not yet possible to state how many qualified students had still missed out on places. The AVCC's annual survey of unmet demand was being completed and would be released next month.

Professor Scott said the shift to full-time enrolments could reflect the Government's imposition of a Higher Education Administration Charge. The charge of $263 is paid by all students, whether they are studying full-time or part-time.

'It is likely', he said, 'that some students are deciding to enrol full-time in a bid to complete their studies more quickly and so reduce the total amount they pay in fees.'

Some of the smaller universities experienced the greatest growth this year.

At Deakin University the overall student load (Equivalent Full-Time Student Units or EFTSU) is expected to increase by almost 12 per cent this year. Some of this rise is due to a new course on campus, the Diploma of Nursing. This has also helped towards a dramatic increase in the number of new full-time students on the campus -- up by almost 40 per cent.

CAMPUS CLINIC

The Human Movement and Sports Science Department, in association with the Illawarra Sports Medicine Clinic, is to open a campus branch of the Clinic.

Serving the needs of staff and students who sustain injuries in work, sport or recreation, the Campus Clinic will initially operate three afternoons a week (Monday, Wednesday and Friday) from 1.30 to 4.30 pm.

Treatment is by appointment only, and these may be made by contacting Stephanie on ext 3352 (270352 external line) during Clinic hours, or in person at 8.G17 (old Administration Building).

The concept of an on-campus Clinic is most exciting as it provides an opportunity for students undertaking the Exercise Therapy major in the BAppSci (Human Movement) course to obtain in-house experience and expertise.

Physiotherapist and staff member Irene Romanova will oversee the treatment protocol provided through the Clinic. Fees for service must, in the case of students, be paid for each treatment. Bankcard facilities, however, and the opportunity to obtain accounts, may be available for staff. Fees will be in accordance with those recommended by the Australian Physiotherapists Association, and are largely refundable for people with appropriate private health insurance.

The Clinic will provide an opportunity for staff to obtain treatment for work-related injuries and workers compensation cases will be accepted. This convenience facility will assist staff members to be fully rehabilitated on campus.

For further details, contact Owen Curtis, Human Movement and Sports Science, ext 3493.

WHY SO FEW? WHAT YOU THINK

The Open Forum, 'Improving the Participation of Women in Academic Life' was held on March 16 and attended by staff from all faculties. It was particularly heartening to see senior staff, including professors and department heads, from subject fields where few women appear, including Engineering, Chemistry and Computer Science, as well as those from the 'traditional' disciplines.

The Vice-Chancellor, Professor Ken McKinnon, opened the seminar remarking that it was an appropriate time to address this challenge given the national support for such moves and declared his personal support for the general thrust in this direction.

The barriers to womens' participation, as indicated by recent research, were listed and discussed only briefly, given that the intention of the forum was to generate strategies for change. In essence, these barriers covered a full range, from broad social factors like gender conditioning, through educational factors, such as irrelevant curriculum and poor career information through finally to the employment barriers like inadequate childcare and policies which fail to take career breaks into account.

The discussion on strategies was lively and may be summarised as follows:

1. The University should actively liaise with school authorities to assist in overcoming some of the barriers perceived at this level of the educational system. This could include providing positive role models from the University, conducting seminars with Career Advisers, and liaising with curriculum committees.
2. Harness the womens' voice on campus on matters concerning all facets of University policy – including those of particular interest to women such as childcare, but reaching far more widely than this into all policy

It was considered vital that women tap into the decision-making and decision influencing process more than at present – not merely by being on more committees as individuals, although this too should be maintained.

This more united policy approach will require better internal communication and coordination of womens' resources and the EEO Unit has undertaken to 'oil' this process.

These were only two of the outcomes of the discussion.

More detailed minutes will be made available to all interested parties, so please contact us if you would like them. I will of course be communicating further on an action plan for these two strategy areas and look forward to any contributions/suggestions on these themes.

Kathy Rozmeta
EEO Co-ordinator

Applications close with the University on June 16.

AUSTRALIAN ACADEMY OF SCIENCE

The Australian Academy of Science and the Australian Academy of Technological Sciences and Engineering operate an exchange program with the Royal Society.

Scientists and technologists who are Australian residents and who are at least postdoctoral may apply now to participate in the 1989 program. Applicants should propose a collaborative research project which has been developed in consideration with an appropriate host scientist in the United Kingdom. WOLLONGONG BICENTENNIAL CHOIR UPDATE

This large massed choir, with members drawn from various choirs in the Illawarra, has been formed and organised by Sylvia Rice (President of the Illawarra Choral Society), especially for 1988 and has as its conductor Robert Smith. The accompanist is Keith Baxter; all three are lecturers in the Faculty of Education. The choir had its first performance at the Royal opening of the Illawarra Performing Arts Centre on Saturday January 30, with a sparkling rendition of Zadok the priest (Handel), a favourite with Prince Charles.

On Sunday March 27 members of the choir performed in Brandon Park at the 'Back to Wollongong' Festival organised by the Wollongong Bicentennial Committee.

There they were accompanied by the Tommy Tycho Orchestra in an anthem-style arrangement of Song of Australia, and provided choral support for the finale, Celebration of a Nation.

On Easter Sunday, April 3, the choir will participate in the Combined Churches Ecumenical Service, again in Brandon Park, and organised jointly by the Wollongong Bicentennial Committee and the Wollongong Ministers Fraternal. Here, to the accompaniment of the Wollongong Salvation Army Band, the choir will lead the congregational singing and also provide two solo items: the Hallelujah Chorus (from Messiah by Handel), and Lord of the Dance (Carter arr. Smith).

Conductor of the choir, Robert Smith, has arranged this modern popular hymn tune for four-part choir and brass band especially for the occasion, and the performance will be used for the presentation of liturgical dance. The dancers have been trained by Valerie Barnsley, a second-year BEd(Primary) student, who also designed the costumes. A mature student, Valerie has always been vitally interested in dance, after extensive ballet training in her teens; she brings sincere Christian conviction to bear upon her work with this group of young dancers, who come from local churches. As a part of the week-long Festival of Nations Celebrations, this service will begin at 2 pm.

CROISSANTS AND COFFEE AT GLENIFFER BRAE

Saturday April 16 at 8.30 am, is the date and time for hot croissants and coffee at the Conservatorium of Music, Gleniffer Brae. There will be music provided by Conservatorium students and staff. Sponsorship is by Tip Top Bakeries.

Bring your friends and enjoy a pleasant hour of entertainment in the idyllic surrounds of Gleniffer Brae gardens and canopied courtyard. The fresh early morning autumn air along with hot croissants and coffee should heighten the appeal and start to the day.

Informal seating will be available; elderly and disabled passengers will be able to be driven to the Manor House. If you really enjoy the occasion, a donation would be gratefully received by the orchestral parents support group.

TOP AUSTRALIAN CHAMBER MUSIC TRIO FOR WOLLONGONG

The Sydney Trio, a recently formed chamber music ensemble that promises to become one of the finest in Australia, is to make its first appearance in Wollongong at the Performing Arts Centre on Saturday March 26 at 8.15 pm in the first concert of the Illawarra Music Club's Gold chamber music series.

The outstanding musicians who make up the trio are violinists Ronald Thomas, international competition winner, conductor and recording artists; Georg Pedersen who has performed widely in Europe as well as giving solo performances of cello masterworks for the ABC; and Christine Logan, the trio's pianist, who has played in concerts on radio and television in the USA and Canada.

The Trio will perform Mozart's Trio in E major K 542, Beethoven's Archduke Trio Op. 97 and Dvorak's Trio in F minor Op. 65.

Seats from $10 (concession $5) are available from the Performing Arts Centre, phone 263366.

EASTER WITH SONG

The University of Wollongong Singers Easter program will take place on Good Friday, April 1, 8 pm, at All Saints Church, Figtree. The program of sacred music from the Renaissance will include some of the works performed in the past to enthusiastic response: Byrd's Ave Verum Corpus, Taverner's Dum Transisset Est, Palestrina's Stabat Mater (for double choir) and Tallis' Lamentations of Jeremiah.

Besides the Singers usual ceremonial appearances -- University Church Service, Graduation, the Gala Concert in June for the Friends of the University -- preparations are in hand for two special concerts which, it is hoped, will interest Campus News readers, who are offered, for the first time, subscribers' tickets.

1. August 19, 8 pm, University Union Hall, Australian Choral Music. The Singers celebrate Australia's bicentennial year with a concert to Australian choral music, including a short work commissioned from young composers in the School of Creative Arts as well as a host of exciting, little-heard works spanning the past 200 years from Isaac Nathan and Percy Grainger to Martin Wesley-Smith's witty 'Songs for Snark Hunters'.

2. December 10, 8 pm, Performing Arts Centre, Handel's Messiah. The choir, expanded, will be joined by professional soloists and a chamber orchestra in a performance of Handel's 'Messiah'. This will provide fresh insights and enjoyment for the listener already familiar with this masterpiece of baroque music.

The Singers hope you will be able to join them for these concerts. They are offering subscribers' tickets at rates for adult, concession (children, students, pensioners) and family (two adults plus any number of children). Single and subscription tickets will be available at the door on Good Friday.

The table below sets out the savings for subscribers.
