Professor David Bellos

Perec critic speaks on ideal womanhood

WHEN THE LATE GEORGES PEREC visited the Department of Languages of The University of Wollongong in 1981 he was already a celebrity. His first novel, Things. A Man Asleep, won the Prix Renaudot in 1965. Publication, in 1987, of his work Life. A User's Manual, described in the Sydney Morning Herald as '... a masterpiece of 20th century fiction', and in 1990 of W, or the Memory of Childhood, has further enhanced his reputation.

On Monday April 2, following in Perec's footsteps, the distinguished British academic David Bellos visited the campus. Professor Bellos, a critic of Perec and translator of the above works, came in search of source material for the two-volume biography of Perec he is writing.

Professor Bellos, Head of the Department of French Studies at the University of Manchester, is also an expert on Balzac.

Sean Perry wins prestigious BHP-Utah Scholarship

SEAN PERRY, second year mining engineering student, Department of Civil and Mining Engineering, was found to be the best practical mining engineering student from all over Australia and won a $4,000 BHP-Utah Iron Ore Division Scholarship for Mining Engineering for 1990.

Sean worked as a student trainee at the Mount Newman mine during the summer of 1990 where he impressed his superiors by his keen interest, hard work and motivation.

In order to recognise Sean's achievement, a luncheon was organised by Mrs

Janice Menegé, Superintendent, Recruiting and Development, BHP-Utah Minerals International, Perth, at the Bistro, Union Building, The University of Wollongong on April 4 where he received the cheque for $4,000.

The luncheon was attended by Sean Perry, Mrs Janice Menegé, Professor L.C. Schmidt, Head, Department of Civil and Mining Engineering, Dr E. Baafi, Senior Lecturer, Professor R.N. Singh, Giant Resources Professor in Mining Engineering, and Dr Ian Porter, Lecturer in Mining Engineering (not in photograph).

General Notices

L'Ordre des Palmes Académiques

THE ORDER of The Academic Palms was presented to Mr Graham Tucker at The University of Wollongong on April 5 at 5.30 p.m. The award was made as a '...reward for numerous activities in the service of French Language and French culture'.

Graham Tucker is a former Kiama and Wollongong High School teacher. He also taught at Temora High School and Liverpool Girls High School.

He was Head of the Department of Languages at Liverpool Girls High School (1965 to 1983). During these years the language department flourished, with up to seven language teachers on the staff. Many language pupils went on to tertiary study and beyond, becoming quite a force in language teaching in New South Wales. The school became a focal point for language teaching in the Western Suburbs of Sydney, hosting 'in-service' language courses and nurturing a constant stream of practice teachers.

Graham has also lectured to students undertaking the Diploma in Education at The University of Wollongong and has been a frequent speaker at Schools Days. He is presently undertaking a PhD in the Department of English.

The award will be presented by Monsieur Georges Zask from the French Embassy in Canberra.

Among those present at the ceremony was Professor Barry Leal. Professor Leal is also a recipient of a Palme Academique, awarded when he was Head of the Department of Languages at this University.

Lux Motoa joins School of Creative Arts

LUX MOTOA, an exiled South African, has just joined the University as an MCA (Performing Arts) student. An active member of the African National Congress, he is the Regional Head of the ANC Department of Arts and Culture in East Africa.

His involvement in the Arts as a stage and film actor, singer and administrator spans a period of 20 years. Lux has had no formal training in the Arts as no such facility exists for the black community in his native land. Like millions of other black artists and performers, Lux has accumulated his knowledge from the dusty streets and the dimly lit and cold halls of the townships where he has performed.

Lux arrived in Australia in 1989 on an Apheda-sponsored skills development exchange, during which he was seconded to Belvoir Street and Side Track Theatre Companies, and the Carnivale and Sydney Festivals. During this time the School of Creative Arts at The University of Wollongong was recommended to him as a suitable place to study, and Lux cancelled his original plans to study in the UK later this year. Lux has said:

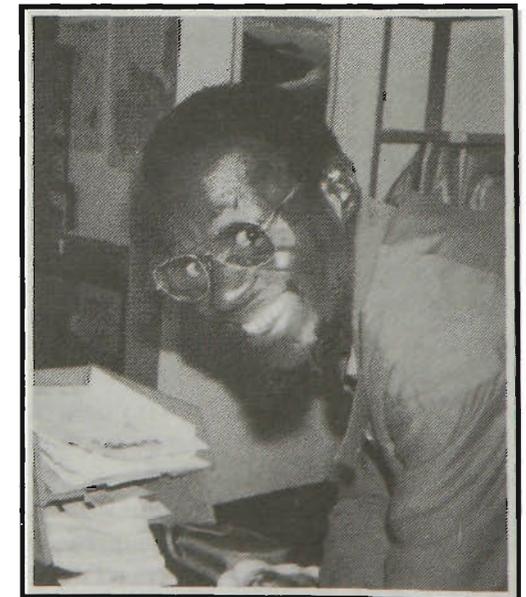

To us, the oppressed and exploited of South Africa, education and training form an integral part of the process of nation building, of creating a non-racial, non-sexist and democratic South Africa. I owe every minute of my studies to the thousands of committed cultural workers who, because of their skin pigmentation, have not had the opportunity of augmenting that vast array of practical experience with equally important aspects of technical training. What Australia is giving me I intend, in fact I have to, plough back into our country. As we embark into the difficult process of creating a democratic South African culture of respect for life, of love for humanity and love of justice. We desperately need these skills!

How do I plunge into battle if I haven't sharpened my spear, if I don't know the muzzle velocity of the barrel of my pen? We have to and we shall destroy the culture of racial hatred, of death squads, of Neo-Nazism that has transformed the beautiful land into a battlefield. We need to and shall direct this energy into more positive and creative avenues of creating a better South Africa for all to live in.

Or, better still, under the street light when I had to put up an impromptu performance in Invitations have been sent to all academic staff inviting them to attend the ceremonies and to participate in the academic procession. They are requested to return the reply slip promptly.

Dr Dennis Haskell from the University of Western Australia

Distinguished Visitor to the Department of English

A RECENT VISITOR to the New Literatures Research Centre in the Department of English was Dr Dennis Haskell from the University of Western Australia. Dennis is currently the Harry White Fellow at the National Library in Canberra; he presented a paper on Kenneth Slessor to an interested group of students and staff.

Other visitors have been Filipino writer Ruth Mabanglo and Canadian Jack Hodgins who, fresh from Writer's Week at the Adelaide Festival, found time to give readings at Wollongong. The next speaker in the seminar series will be Gwen McClelland who will give a reading of Henry Lawson on Friday April 27 at 2.30 pm. All welcome.

a bid to convince the drunken group of white policemen that I, in fact, was 'employed' as an actor. 'Hey, you mean you do nothing but act all day long? All right, act for us you lazy black bastard! And don't cheat, I'm watching you! I'm your Supervisor!

I think that was the best performance of my career! And I escaped arrest! Oh you didn't know! South Africa has invented the best method of fighting unemployment; arrest the unemployed black bastards, and sell them to farmers for ten cents a day.'

Ideal womanhood

While at the University, Professor Bellos presented a paper at a seminar in the Department of Languages entitled Balzac: A 19th Century Feminist?

The seminar focused on the legal status of women in the post-Napoleonic era and the image of ideal womanhood put forth in Balzac's novel Eugénie Grandet. The audience, including students from the Department and the Illawarra branch of the Alliance Française, was most appreciative. A cassette tape of the lecture is available from Dr Susan Yates, ext. 3636.

The next activity of the local Alliance Française, an evening of playing Trivial Pursuit in French, will be held on June 1. Further details from Dr Brian McCarthy, ext. 3720.

From energy to water

NOW THAT Professor Ron Johnston and the TASC team are nearing the end of their evaluation of energy research and development in Australia, his attention is turning to water research.

Professor Johnston has been commissioned by the Australian Water Research Advisory Council (AWRAC) to lead a review of the performance of the 12 centres of water research in Australia.

AWRAC established these Centres of Concentration in Water Research in 1987 to overcome the problems of fragmentation in research which had been identified as a major impediment to resolving critical problems in water supply, quality and use in Australia.

The centres are scattered across Australia - in Townsville and Brisbane, Armidale and Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide and Perth. Each is being inspected this month.

The purpose of the review is to establish the significance of the research output and its contribution to national research priorities and the development of linkages with Australian industry.

It will advise on the effectiveness of each of the centres and of the overall program, and make recommendations as to future management and research decisions.

Note to contributors

The editor welcomes contributions for Campus News. Publication is now desktop, and it would be a great help if articles of more than 200 words could, where possible, be prepared on a Macintosh computer with Microsoft Word and submitted on 3.5" discs which will be returned.

Where photographs accompany articles please make them black and white in the interest of clear reproduction. Black and white film is still readily processed commercially.

Visiting Fulbright Scholar in Business Systems

FULBRIGHT SCHOLAR Dr Karen A. Forcht is an Associate Professor in the Department of Information and Decision

Fulbright scholar Dr Karen A Forcht

Sciences, College of Business, James Madison University, Harrisonburg, Virginia. She received her doctorate from Oklahoma State University and is a Certified Data Educator.

Dr Forcht has published numerous articles on the topics of Computer Security and Ethical Use of Computers, as well as maintaining a very active speaking schedule at various international and national conferences.

From May to September this year Dr Forcht will be a Visiting Lecturer in the Department of Information Systems. Her research interests include: computer security, computer ethics, management information systems, human interface with computers, whistleblowing in the computer environment and writing with computers.

Dr Forcht is a recent inductee into the Phi Kappa Phi Academic Honorary and a recipient of the Dominion Fellows Grant of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

Those interested in contacting Dr Forcht may do so through Assoc. Prof. G. Winley, Department of Business Systems.

Courses and Conferences

Communicating Science through the media

IN 1989 the University of Technology, Sydney, presented its first short course 'Communicating Science'. This proved highly successful and in 1990 UTS will be presenting two courses for practising scientists and a separate course for public relations practitioners.

The standard course ($825) will run from May 23 to June 30, and the advanced course ($990) from September 4 to October 13.

Dr Peter Pockley is the course co-ordinator and lecturers include: Geoff Burchfield, Quantum, ABC TV; Helen Meredith, Technology Section, The Australian; Peter Roberts, Financial Review; Norman Swan, The Health Report, ABC Radio and Robyn Williams, The Science Show, ABC Radio.

Brochures are available from Gillian Curtis, ext. 3926.

Boden Research Conferences

WITH THE generous support of Dr A Boden, FAA, the Australian Academy of Science conducts a series of small specialist research conferences in the biological sciences to enable active research workers in rapidly advancing fields to discuss current advances and problems.

Two conferences are organised each year with a membership of 20-30 and of about two days' duration. The conferences are held in succession at Thredbo in the Snowy Mountains in the first week of February. A sum of up to $5000 is allocated for each conference and the supplementation of this sum from other sources is encouraged. The initiative, financial accountability and detailed arrangements for the conference are the responsibility of the organisers and the relevant scientific society/organisation which acts as a joint sponsor with the Academy.

Societies and organisations are invited to submit one or more proposals for February 1992. Proposals submitted in previous years will be reconsidered if resubmitted.

Proposals should be submitted on application forms available from the Academy secretariat and should be addressed to: The Executive Secretary, Australian Academy of Science, GPO Box 783, Canberra ACT 2601. Telephone enquiries to Faye Nicholas (062) 47 5777. Closing date for applications is July 31.

IF YOU ARE, you should attend the Industrial Archaeology Liaison Conference.

The Industrial Archaeology Subcommittee of the Illawarra Shoalhaven Region of the National Trust of Australia (NSW) is hosting an Industrial Archaeology Liaison Conference in the City of Wollongong on Saturday May 12. This is the sub-committee's contribution to the 1990 Heritage Week activities.

The conference aims to bring together people in the Illawarra and surrounding areas who have an interest in the history of industry, mining, transport, maritime, communications, agriculture, defence, trades and any other similar topics which make up the broad spectrum of industrial archaeology.

A wide range of speakers with specific interests in industrial archaeology have been invited to tell the delegates what the various organisations are doing and to take part in a forum where the delegates can ask questions and make suggestions.

Venue: BHP Slab & Plate Products Division Conference Centre, Corner of King and Hoskins Streets, Warrawong on Saturday May 12: 8.45 - 9.35 for registration, 9.35 start of conference. Cost: $10 (students free) lunch and teas included.

Note: Applications for registration, together with a remittance for the Conference cost, should be lodged with the Convener, Don Reynolds, 21 Toorak Avenue, Wollongong, NSW, 2500, Tel. (042) 293459 before Tuesday May 1.

Staff Roundup

25 Years Service Awards

IN 1988 the University presented inaugural awards to staff members who had completed 25 years service.

These awards will again be presented in 1990, in recognition of the contributions made by the recipients both in the present and the past.

Associate Professor Colm Kiernan, Associate Professor David Anderson, Doctor Jim Campbell, Professor Ken McLean and Mrs Jane Cook have all been invited to receive their awards on University Day in conjunction with the presentation of other University awards. The combined service of these five people is over 125 years.

To date 20 employees have satisfied the requirements for this award, many of them still actively contributing to the University.

Casual pay variations

ANZAC DAY, April 25, is the Wednesday before pay day. In order to have casual pay prepared on time, deadlines by which all information must reach the Pay Office have been brought forward one day.

Part-time teaching returns must be received by noon on Friday April 20 and the casual timesheets by noon on Monday April 23.

Health and Physical Education

THE HEALTH and Physical Education staff from the Faculty of Education (pictured) held a retreat at the Fitzroy Falls Convention Centre in February.

The retreat, whose primary purpose was to develop a Strategic Plan and Mission Statement for the Unit, was an outstanding success.

Its mission was achieved and will determine the future directions of the Unit.

Safety Report

THE CLOSE OF 1989 saw a significant reduction in the number and cost of Workers' Compensation claims at the University, with 57 claims being made and the premium representing 0.05 per cent of payroll compared to 66 claims in 1988, when the premium represented 0.07 per cent of payroll.

Congratulations to all staff whose efforts went into reducing the number of accidents and produced this result.

Savings in Workers' Compensation costs have enabled the University to make a greater investment in programs for the safety and welfare of all employees.

Accident reporting is an important part of the Safety Program. Minor incidents are often caused by hazards that under different circumstances could cause serious injury. Analysis of these reports can identify and eliminate hazards, thus preventing serious injury.

All accidents, no matter how minor, should be reported.

Emergency contacts

STAFF AND STUDENTS are reminded that in cases of emergency Security Staff are 'contactable' by mobile telephone by dialling 645 (internal) or 018,421283 (external). The Security Staff's office number is 3936 (internal) or 270936 (external).

All Staff

HAVE YOU changed your address lately?

If you have, please advise the Personnel Services Branch of your new address and/or phone number to ensure records are kept up to date.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

From April 10, any orders raised for National Australia Bank Travel will be paid automatically upon receipt of invoice. Unless Financial Services Branch is advised to the contrary, raising the order itself will be considered as authority to pay.

It will therefore be necessary for Departments to advise Finance promptly if travel does not occur.

ITACS

Latest student society on campus

ITACS is an acronym for Information Technology and Communication Society.

It is new and exciting and projects have been planned for the forthcoming weeks, and the rest of the year's plans are taking shape. To get this society operating at maximum efficiency to provide workshops, seminars and of course, parties, the society needs support!

A newsletter datelined March 23 has been published. Copies are available from the Editor, Jeannie Smith, tel. 843052. Secretary of the Society is Cathy Philpot, tel. 711920.

Illawarra Committee for Overseas Students

THE ICOS office has been relocated in the Union Building next to the Counselling Centre. Office hours are Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 9 am to 2 pm. Tel. 27 0158 or ext. 3158.

Research Funds

The sources of research funds given below are available to members of academic staff. Further information, including application forms, may be obtained from Kim Roser (ext. 3201). Intending applicants are reminded that all research applications must be forwarded through the Office of Postgraduate Studies.

Research Grants

National Teaching Company Scheme

The Commonwealth Department of Industry, Technology and Commerce has funding available to Australian owned or based companies for employment of graduates in joint projects with Australian tertiary institutions. The scheme is designed to forge links between companies and tertiary education institutions and subsidise the cost of employing high-calibre graduates in projects to improve company performance.

Applications close with the University on May 17.

Law Foundation of New South Wales

The Law Foundation of New South Wales invites applications for its general grants program for 1991. Grants of up to $50,000 are available for innovative projects or research falling within the objectives and goals of the Law Foundation.

Applications close with the University on May 17.

The Anglican Chaplaincy

THE ANGLICAN CHAPLAIN, the Reverend John Reid, and his Associate, Mrs Laraine O'Brien, are active on campus and have much to offer the university community. They are available for informal chats, to provide counselling, support and encouragement as well as spiritual guidance and Ministry training.

Uni Church is a place for those interested in the Christian faith to take part in a service set around good music, relevant preaching and reading of scripture and prayer at 7.15 pm at St John's Anglican Church (corner of Eastern and Moore Streets, Gwynneville). At 6.30 pm, before the service, those attending are invited to a light meal (cost $1.50) in the church hall.

Communion is celebrated on campus at 8.40 am each Wednesday in one of the rooms in the Union Building close to the Chaplains' office. The services conclude by 9.20 am.

On Thursday from 12.30 to 1.30 pm in Building 19.G016 (take your lunch), Campus Bible Study offers an opportunity for detailed consideration of Biblical documents and allows an opportunity to question the speaker on issues raised by the passage examined. John and Laraine encourage participants to visit them in the Chaplains' Office for coffee and informal discussion after Bible Study. Details of passages to be considered and dates of weekly meetings are available from the Chaplaincy office.

The Chaplaincy has a variety of books on topical issues, commentaries on books of the Bible and material which introduces the Christian faith available in its library. Campus Bible Study is recorded each week and cassettes of past and current studies are available on loan from the library in the Chaplains' office.

More information on any of the above from the Chaplains' Office, 1st floor, Union Building, tel. 27 0534; the Chaplain, the Reverend John Reid, tel. 28 8417; and Mrs Laraine O'Brien, the Chaplain's Associate, tel. 28 6436.

Department of Mechanical Engineering

(Note: The University charges a parking fee of $1 for parking within the University grounds).

Thursday May 3, Building 8 Seminar Room at 1.30 pm: Dr P.R. Gibson, Senior Lecturer, Department of Mechanical Engineering, Quality in manufacturing

This seminar will cover two main areas of research interest. The first is the application of automated statistical process control and in-cycle gauging to a CNC (Computer Numerical Control) machine tool. This work investigates the use of an integrated touch trigger probing technique and statistical software for automatically monitoring and continuously analysing the capability of a CNC machine tool. This technique has a major impact on the economics of utilising CNC machine tools.

The second area of interest is concerned with the cost-effectiveness of current international quality system standards (e.g. AS 3900/ISO 9000 series). The current strategies employed in Australia and overseas for implementation of Quality Systems will be considered. Proposals for the application of cybernetics to quality systems will be discussed with a view to improving systems design and their ability to adapt to a changing business environment.
