Australian Customs Service NSW Collector Jim Conlon finds artefacts such as this guitar made from the shell of a turtle distasteful and wonders at the mentality of those involved in the illegal trafficking and slaughter of wildlife, particularly endangered species.

Wildlife exhibition - Custom-made

A WILDLIFE exhibition with a difference is being held at the Wollongong Science Centre.

Called Seized, the exhibition displays items of endangered and threatened species from around the world seized by Customs Officers under the Wildlife Protection Act.

There are also many products made from the skins and shells of endangered species. The Customs exhibition was launched in the Australian Museum in Sydney more than a year ago. It has been touring most Australian states since, making the dramatic plea for travellers to help slow the senseless slaughter of endangered creatures by refusing to buy stuffed wildlife or products made from them.

The centrepiece of the exhibition is a

2.5metre tall North American grizzly bear brought into the country with the personal effects of a man transferring to work in Australia.

There are also skins of the big cats, an elephant and a rhino footstool, giant snake skins, intricate ivory carvings, and even a turtle shell guitar. A feature is the suitcase used by a bird smuggler attempting to take native Australian parrots overseas for sale on the black market.

Seized was opened by the Collector of Customs for NSW, Jim Conlon.

"No-one can see the result of such senseless killing and the greedy trade in wildlife without agreeing that we must leave the wildlife where it belongs," he said.

Mr Conlon said that the penalty for trading for protected or endangered wildlife was up to five years imprisonment or a maximum fine of $100,000.

The exhibition will be at the Science Centre for at least two months and is open 1-5pm each day during the school holidays.

The elected student executive are Valli Beattie (President), Lyndal Dean (Vice President), Galay Ramia (Treasurer), Peter Logan (Secretary).

This new association will liaise with industrial relations practitioners and societies to gain further insights into the field.

THE Department of Civil and Mining Engineering has attracted further research funding from the NSW Education and Training Foundation for a project in conjunction with the materials and minerals industries to provide interactive computer based training modules for safe production with bins, conveyors and crushers.

The $242,000 research project, proposed and to be co-ordinated by Dr Denis Montgomery, has received wide support from industry, including the Institute of Quarrying, Australasian Slag Association and associated member companies. ETF and Industry will provide funding of $84,500 and $104,000, respectively, during the 18 months duration of the project.

THE Department of Management is holding a careers day on Tuesday, October 22 to create an awareness of marketing among the undergraduate business and commerce students.

Speakers will give their personal views on the marketing profession and future career opportunities and provide practical "hands on" knowledge that students cannot obtain in a university course. Staff members are welcome to attend. Contact Janet Hall, ext 4145.

THE Department of Nursing of the University of Wollongong, and the Illawarra Area Health Service are hosting a Nursing Symposium on Psychosocial Issues in Community Health Nursing at the University of Wollongong on Thursday October 10.

THE Australian Vice-Chancellors Committee has moved ahead with the pilot program to enable better credit transfer between Australian post-secondary institutions.

Vice-Chancellor, Professor Ken McKinnon, receives a gift from the visiting Thai executives

THE National Housing Authority of Thailand sent 46 executives for a seven-day training program in Australia this month.

The program included a visit to this University to meet those involved in the Structural Engineering and Construction Research Program in the Department of Civil and Mining Engineering.

At a function to welcome the visitors the Vice-Chancellor was presented with the figure of a mythical god which represented power and prosperity.

At its full meeting recently, the AVCC, which represents Australia's universities, endorsed a working party's proposals on credit transfer.

Credit transfer is a system where studies previously undertaken or work experience gained can be credited towards a degree.

AVCC president, Professor Ken McKinnon, said the AVCC has pledged a substantial amount for the pilot project. This would reflect an initial grant from the Department of Employment, Education and Training.

"We believe the higher education institution themselves must be the final custodians of credit transfer," he said.

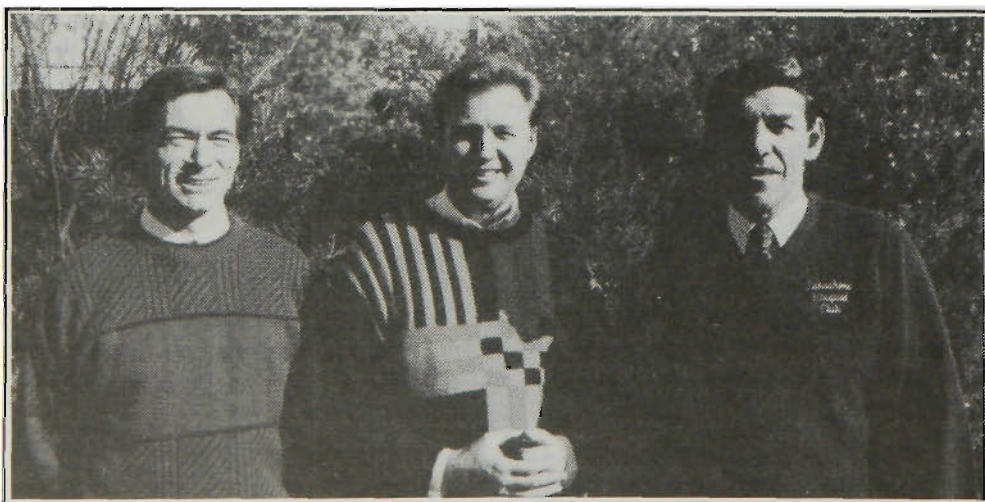

PROFESSOR Jennifer Seberry, from the Australian Defence Force Academy, has accepted appointment as Professor of Computer Science.

Professor Seberry was born in Sydney and obtained her BSc in 1966 from the University of NSW. Her MSc and PhD were awarded by La Trobe in 1969 and 1971 respectively.

She was Professor and Head of the Department of Computer Science at University College, Australian Defence Force Academy.

Especially interested in authentication and computer security, Professor Seberry and her colleagues have received considerable media attention for their ATERB financed research into "anti-hacking systems" or User Unique Identification.

Professor Seberry will take up the appointment in the second half of 1992.

Barry Baird, John Hedberg and Gwyn Brickell.

THE Christopher Columbus Consortium (CCC) program, a partnership consisting of the Faculty of Education, K-12 schools and Apple Computer Inc., is becoming well established at Keira Technology High School.

The purpose of the consortium is to promote effective applications of computers and related technologies in education.

Two members of Keira High's science faculty, Barry Baird and Gwyn Brickell, are directly involved with members of the Faculty of Education in developing an interactive multimedia software package relevant to the science education curriculum in junior and senior high schools.

Both teachers and Associate Professor John Hedberg, were invited to attend the CCC annual conference in San Jose, USA in July.

Nicole represents Australia

SECOND-year Human Movement student Nicole Smith has been selected to represent Australia in the Miss World University Contest '91. Nicole is in Korea participating in the pageant. Miss World University title winners are expected to serve as World Peace Messengers for the United Nations and travel during their university vacations to various world peace organisations.

University, FMWU sign agreement

THE Federated Miscellaneous Workers Union of Australia (FMWU) and the University of Wollongong have negotiated an agreement to employ intellectually disabled individuals in appropriate positions.

The initial target is the employment of four such people in cleaning positions in the six months from the signing of the agreement.

At the end of 12 months the parties will review the future target for subsequent years. The aim is to expand the numbers in cleaning and expand into other areas.

Essential Personnel Employment Agency, an organisation dedicated to matching intellectually-disabled people with jobs, will put forward the names of possible participants in the employment program and participate in appropriate training for these people and their induction into the workplace.

Dianne MacDonald and Amanda Graham, Essential Personnel, Robyn Weekes, University's Acting Personnel Officer, Kim Mayer and Georgina Whallin from the FMWU. Looking on is Ross Hounslow, supervisor, Cleaning Staff

Establishment of University audit committee

AT its August meeting, the University Council established a University Audit Committee in accordance with the guidelines provided by the Auditing Standards Board of the Australian Accounting Research Foundation.

The Board defines an audit committee as: "a committee comprising a majority of independent/non-executive members of the governing body of an entity to which has been assigned, amongst other functions, the oversight of the financial reporting and auditing process".

An audit committee should:

- comprise a majority of independent/non-executive members of the governing body with no operating responsibilities;
- include an executive member of the governing body so that it is directly informed of that body's views, the independence of the committee will be enhanced if the executive member is not directly involved in the financial functions of the entity;

- have continuity of membership;

- have qualifications for membership which reflect those appropriate for membership of the governing body, while it would be appropriate that at least one member of the committee have a strong financial background, the overall composition of the committee should reflect a broad experience and knowledge base.

In accordance with the above guidelines, Council elected the following members to the University Audit Committee: Rod Oxley (Chairperson), Robert Somerville, Shirley Nixon and Professor Lauchlan Chipman

The committee held its first meeting on September 12 to determine its precise terms of reference for submission to Council's next meeting.

eEO news

THE EEO Disability sub-Committee would like to draw to the attention of students and staff with disability that there is an area provided in the University Library as a study facility for their use.

The area is currently located on the ground floor of the Library (Rm G33) although it is anticipated that this facility will be relocated in the coming year to a larger area on the second floor where additional resources will be provided.

For any enquiries regarding the availability of this area contact the Library Information Desk, ext 3548.

The EEO Disability sub-Committee would like to record its appreciation to the Library for this initiative on behalf of students and staff with disability.

FAYE FRANKLIN, Acting Equal Opportunity Co-ordinator

The Chancellor, the Hon RM Hope (right) opened the exhibition and admired the diversity of the Collection with Dr Eveleigh.

Art collection a permanent joy

AN EXHIBITION featuring works from the University's Permanent Art Collection is being held in the Long Gallery until October 20.

The exhibition will be open on Monday-Friday 10am-1pm and 2pm-4pm, and Sunday 1.30pm-4pm

The Permanent Collection has been built up with modest annual funding but much love and care.

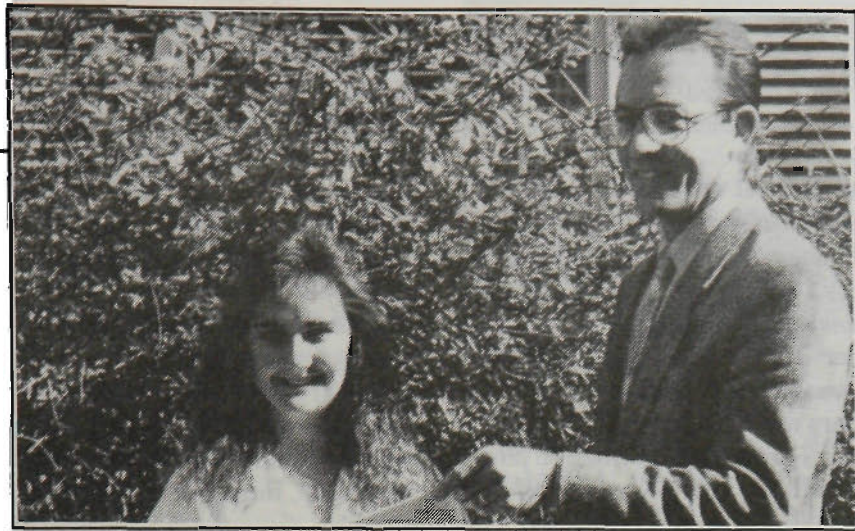

Curator of the Collection, Dr John Eveleigh, has had some advice but he has virtually single-handedly organised the acquisition of pieces and curated and displayed the resulting collection.

The result delights the University community and visitors. Members of staff comment on the way the Permanent Collection adds to the attractiveness of the work environment.

Requests for art to be hung in Departments well exceed the resources of the collection and will continue to do so until the collection can be built up further.

Another excellent feature of the Permanent Collection is that start it is giving to young artists who graduate from the school of Creative Arts. Several artists have their first representation in our Permanent Collection.

Dr Eveleigh is proud of the fact that it is not only an artistically admirable collection, but also one which is demonstrably increasing in value.

Support for women in engineering

BHP Steel, represented by their Equal Employment Opportunity Co-ordinator Ian McLean, presents a cheque for $2000 to the president of the University's Women in Engineering Network (WIEN), Trish Shanahan.

The funds are to assist WIEN in their mission to support and encourage those trail-blazing women who are undertaking studies in Engineering.

The Faculty of Engineering is developing programs over the Summer Session to encourage increased participation of female school students in engineering.

As well, the University is planning to introduce a combined degree in Arts/Engineering in 1992 which should prove to be an attractive solution for women students who may be thinking of studies in Engineering but who are not too sure of their commitment.

Hong Kong dinner for alumni

A UNIVERSITY of Wollongong reunion dinner was held in Hong Kong on August 29 for graduates, former staff and other contacts of the University.

The venue was the Jumbo Floating Restaurant at Aberdeen Harbour and more than 70 people attended. More than half were graduates, predominantly from the Commerce and Engineering faculties.

The evening was hosted by the Deputy Chancellor, Dr Brian Gillett, who stressed the benefits to alumni of remaining in contact with the University and with each other.

As a result of the excitement generated by the reunion some of the graduates have agreed to assist in setting up a Hong Kong chapter of the University of Wollongong Alumni Association.

Professor Tony Ng, formerly Associate Professor of Electrical and Computer Engineering at the University, and now Professor of Electric and Electronic Engineering at the University of Hong Kong, has been most supportive of this initiative and attended the dinner with his wife, who is also a Wollongong graduate.

The special guests included representatives from Shue Yan College, the Hang Seng School of Commerce, the Education Department and the Australian Alumni Association of Hong Kong, as well as the Australian Trade Commissioner and the Manager of the Australian Education Centre.

Also present were the families of some of our currently enrolled students and the University's representative in Hong Kong.

Careers night

THE Department of Materials Engineering held a very successful careers evening on September 13.

Approximately 50 year 10, 11 and 12 students from high schools together with their parents attended to receive information about materials engineering as a career.

Head of the Department, Associate Professor Noel Kennon outlined the nature of materials engineering.

Associate Professor Druce Dunne, Mrs Sharon Nightingale and Dr Adam Jostons also addressed the students.

The main speakers were recent graduates Mark Pinfold, Azucena Cabello, Leonard Woods and Debbie Tetley, who talked about their reasons for studying materials engineering and their individual careers since graduation.
