Affirmative Action Backed On Campus

In August 1982 a resolution of Council recommended the establishment of a Working Party to review policy and propose measures to promote more equal opportunities at the University of Wollongong. Specific terms of reference:

- (i) To collate, distribute and monitor full statistical and other information relevant to the status of women within the University, with a view to raising awareness of university staff and promoting the concept of sexual equality.
- (ii) To encourage representation of women on key university committees, especially those concerned with appointment, tenure, promotion, and research grants.
- (iii) To develop measures aimed at counteracting the career disruption and disadvantages experienced by women involved in child bearing and raising.
- (iv) To develop measures aimed at enhancing the career prospects for women generally.

The Working Party was duly constituted and met first on November 16 1982. Membership is:

Vice-Chancellor	Dr. K. McKinnon (Chairman)
Chairman, Academic Senate	Professor J. Ryan
Chairman, Tenure Committee	Assoc Prof N Kennon
Chairman, Research Grants Committee	Prof J. Blake
Chairman, Academic Board	Prof P. Rousch
One woman representative of the Staff Association Executive	Ms J. Castle
One woman elected by Institute women staff	Ms L. Gow
Two women elected by Faculty	Dr P. Hamilton
Sector Women staff	Dr E. Richards
Two women nominated by the PSA/FMWU	Ms A. Webb
	Ms J. Richter

The Council resolution was the end result of discussions begun in January 1982 between the Vice-Chancellor and the Women's Sub-Committee of the Academic Staff Association on the need for affirmative action on this campus. These moves at local level are themselves part of a world-wide concern with combating discrimination on ethnic, sexual, or other grounds, a concern which is reflected at Government level in many OECD countries. In NSW the Anti-Discrimination Act of 1977 (amended 1980) requires all State government departments and statutory authorities to produce and implement plans to remove discrimination in employment on the grounds of sex, race and marital status.

Universities, as autonomous institutions, are specifically excluded from the operations of this part of the Act, but nonetheless the NSW Vice-Chancellor's Conference took the view that universities, in accordance with the principles of academic freedom and justice, should voluntarily scrutinise their employment practices, and implement programmes of affirmative action.

Last August while visiting this campus, the Director of Equal Opportunity in Public Employment, Alison Ziller, defined affirmative action as taking positive steps to ensure that the merit principle could operate. The goal is equal opportunity and its achievement would mean the eradication of current practices which give preference to white Anglo Saxon males. Equal opportunity means that this group will experience more competition in getting jobs, and in the workplace, and will inevitably feel some resentment.

Discrimination in bureaucracies such as exist in universities is both direct and indirect. The direct and visible kind is identifiable in wages and in awards. Invisible discrimination is embedded in attitudes and stereotyped assumptions which prejudice employees' recruitment, access to leave, staff development, promotion, work allocation. Indirect discrimination has the facade of normality, e.g. the time honoured assertion that it is fair to treat everyone the same, is used to justify the insistence that everyone work full time. In fact, the absence of permanent part time work is discriminatory because it gives the same treatment to people whose ascribed social roles are very different (e.g. mothers and fathers). Seniority systems operate in similar ways.

The Working Party exists to collate, distribute and monitor full statistical and other information on such problems, and seeks submissions from all interested groups and individuals on campus. Several groups already exist to draft policy for submission to the Working Party. If you wish to contribute to any, or all, of these groups, please contact the group convenor, or any member of the Working Party.

Letters

Dear Readers,

I was interested to read the letter by Don Diespecker in Campus News of December 3 and would like to make the following comments.

Firstly, I would like to put an end to the notion, which has been perpetuated both by popular opinion as well as in the scientific literature for over 50 years, that the whole of the coastal plain of the Illawarra was covered in rainforest. This is clearly not the case as any cursory inspection of the present forest remnants shows. At the campus site rainforest was probably restricted to along creek verges and would in most places be intermingled with eucalypts. The large figs on campus have almost certainly been planted around an early farm building.

Secondly we already have a 'mini rainforest' in front of the library, which the gardening staff have put a lot of work into, which contains a number of the local rainforest species. At the moment many are flowering and fruiting and are worth a visit.

Thirdly, with regard to the planting of a rainforest belt across campus, who stop there? How about a green belt from the top of Mount Keira through the Campus and Botanic Gardens, the Technical College, High Schools and Fairy Creek to Stuart Park and Puckey's Estate to the sea. I would be available to advise on local species to plant if such an idea got going.

Yours sincerely,

Kevin Mills

THE UNFOUNDED LAND

At Wattamolla Beach, Royal National Park. Saturday 5th and Sunday 6th February, 1983. Audience to arrive by 8.30 pm. Admission is free - donations accepted gratefully. Advised to bring ground sheets and torches. Heavy rain or wind could cause cancellation.

T.R.E.E. Theatre Reaching Environments Everywhere - is a group of over one hundred and thirty people who come together, without payment, to work creatively in the belief that our society needs new forms, outlets and traditions for artistic expression. Two months of intense community workshop activity is required to attain the high performance standards set by the group.

The Direction and Co-ordination for the group is provided by George Gittoes and Gabrielle Dalton. The enormous task of dance choreography belongs to Ronaldo Cameron. Electronic musicians Ian Fredericks and Martin Wesley-Smith compose live music to echo through the bush. The massive T.R.E.E. members include people of all ages and nationalities from Bundeena Community, Theatre Unlimited, Kirinari Aboriginal Hostel, CSIRO divers and Bush Fire Brigades. TREE was established in 1979 and this is the group's sixth performance season.

Wattamolla is a beautiful natural amphitheatre in the Royal National Park, south of Sydney. Appropriately, its inlet sheltered the explorers Bass and Flinders during a storm. The audience and performers are spread over an area including cliffs, lagoons and beaches. The environment is brought to life with huge visual images made kinetic with special effects. These include theatrical lighting, lasers, flare-pyrotechnics, projected 16mm film, perspex sculptures, 15 metre lantern puppets, floating barges, boats and pontoons and giant screens. Dancers and acrobats perform on cliff tops, rock ledges, flying foxes, suspended cables and nets, sand and floating barges. The Aquadancer divers create complex underwater light dances.

The theme "The Unfound Land" is that place always sought and imagined but never found. The atmosphere of reality in the external world is too corrosive for this ephemeral place of concepts and dreams ever to last other than in the mind. In the Unfound Land the ships of those who thought the world to be flat are still caught suspended over the edge of the world as the sea falls in curtains of mist; there Lasseter finds his reef of Gold and Columbus, his Eldorado; Appollo Astronauts enter the fantasies of Science Fiction. For the moment the Dreamers in the Unfound Land wake to the nightmare vision in which Einstein's concepts have been perverted into the Atomic Bomb and Picasso makes a blood bath of the Aztecs. Finally Dream and Reality become Myth, heroes are made and legends constructed. Our past will always be a mixture of the Unfound Land of the story teller and the evidence of the historian.

The symbols of dramas of this Dream Structured Ritual can be traced in many traditional cultures from the Aboriginal to that of modern psychology theorists but the overall approach of T.R.E.E. members is to create new images from their own inner experiences and needs for expression. The significance to our modern society of this movement of a large community group towards communicating their dreams through experimental forms of expression to audiences of several thousand people, should not be underestimated.

For further information phone George Gittoes or Gabrielle Dalton on 532.1971.
