Animal Studies Journal

Volume 8 | Number 1

2019

Animal Studies Journal 2019 8 (1): Cover Page, Table of Contents, Editorial and Notes on Contributors

Melissa Boyde
University of Wollongong, boyde@uow.edu.au

Follow this and additional works at: https://ro.uow.edu.au/asj

Part of the Agricultural and Resource Economics Commons, Art and Design Commons, Art Practice Commons, Australian Studies Commons, Communication Commons, Creative Writing Commons, Digital Humanities Commons, Education Commons, English Language and Literature Commons, Feminist, Gender, and Sexuality Studies Commons, Film and Media Studies Commons, Fine Arts Commons, Legal Studies Commons, Linguistics Commons, Philosophy Commons, Political Science Commons, Public Health Commons, Race, Ethnicity and Post-Colonial Studies Commons, Sociology Commons, and the Theatre and Performance Studies Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at:https://ro.uow.edu.au/asj/vol8/iss1/1

Research Online is the open access institutional repository for the University of Wollongong. For further information contact the UOW Library: research-pubs@uow.edu.au
Animal Studies Journal 2019 8 (1): Cover Page, Table of Contents, Editorial and Notes on Contributors

Abstract

This journal article is available in Animal Studies Journal: https://ro.uow.edu.au/asj/vol8/iss1/1
Animal Studies Journal is a fully refereed journal, published twice-yearly, devoted to multidisciplinary scholarship and creative work in the field of Animal Studies.

Editor
Melissa Boyde

Associate Editors
Philip Armstrong
Sally Borrell
Michael Griffiths
Annie Potts

Copy Editor
Sally Borrell

Senior Book Reviewer
Wendy Woodward

Editorial Correspondence
Email: boyde@uow.edu.au

Website: http://ro.uow.edu.au/asj
Twitter: @animalstudies1
Facebook: https://fb.me/asjuow

Design
Liam Fiddler

ISSN 2201-3008

© Copyright 2019 Animal Studies Journal

Copyright in articles remains vested in the authors. Except as permitted under the Copyright Act (1968) as amended (for example, a fair dealing for the purposes of study, research criticism or review), no part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or communicated or transmitted in any form or by any means without prior written permission.

All enquiries should be made to the Editor.
Editorial Team and Advisory Board

Editor
Dr Melissa Boyde, University of Wollongong

Associate Editors
Professor Phillip Armstrong, New Zealand Centre for Human-Animal Studies, U. of Canterbury
Dr Sally Borrell, University of Wollongong
Dr Michael Griffiths, University of Wollongong
Professor Annie Potts, New Zealand Centre for Human-Animal Studies, U. of Canterbury

Copy Editor
Dr Sally Borrell, University of Wollongong

Editorial Advisory Board
Dr Giovanni Aloi, School of the Art Institute of Chicago
Professor Steve Baker, University of Central Lancashire
Dr Georgette Leah Burns, Griffith University
Professor Una Chaudhuri, New York University
Dr Matthew Chrulew, Curtin University
Professor Deirdre Coleman, University of Melbourne
Professor Barbara Creed, University of Melbourne
Ms Elizabeth Ellis LLB, University of Wollongong
Professor Adrian Franklin, University of Tasmania
Professor Erica Fudge, University of Strathclyde
Professor Donna Haraway, University of California Santa Cruz
Dr Susan Hazel, University of Adelaide
Professor Andrew Knight, University of Canterbury
Professor Amanda Lawson, University of Wollongong
Professor Susan McHugh, University of New England
Dr Alison Moore, University of Wollongong
Dr Cecilia Novero, University of Otago
Professor Fiona Probyn-Rapsey, University of Sydney
Dr Denise Russell, University of Wollongong
Professor John Simons, Macquarie University
Professor Peta Tait, University of Wollongong
Professor Helen Tiffin, University of Wollongong
Dr Tom Tyler, Oxford Brookes University
Dr Yvette Watt, University of Tasmania
Assoc. Professor Linda Williams, RMIT University
Professor Cary Wolfe, Rice University
Professor Wendy Woodward, University of the Western Cape

Cover Acknowledgements
Cover image by Yvette Watt, University of Tasmania

AUSTRALASIAN ANIMAL STUDIES ASSOCIATION

WEBPAGE
Our website provides detailed information about AASA, including our aims and vision, committee profiles, list of members and member profiles, AASA conferences. The News Page lists upcoming conferences, seminars and exhibitions, new publications and calls for papers and proposals. The website also includes resources for animal studies scholars: http://animalstudies.org.au/

BECOME A MEMBER OF AASA
The AASA relies on membership fees to support and improve its initiatives, such as our e-bulletin Animail, AASA Forum, Facebook page and website, in order to keep you informed of events and issues related to Animal Studies. Membership ensures a listing of your profile on our website and the opportunity to nominate and vote (in person or by proxy) at our Annual General Meeting.
You can join AASA or renew your membership online: http://animalstudies.org.au/membership
Contents

Editorial .................................................................................. i
Contributor Biographies ................................................................ iii

Stop Press Paper:
Helen Tiffin
Many Happy Returns: Eradication, Re-Wilding and the Case of Lord Howe Island .......... viii

pattrice jones
Provocation from the field: Derangement and Resistance: Reflections from Under the Glare of an Angry Emu ...................................................... 1

Nicola Evans; Alison Moore
Is There a Turtle in this Text? Animals in the Internet of Robots and Things ............. 21

Kirsty Dunn
Kaimangatanga: Māori Perspectives on Veganism and Plant-based Kai .................... 42

Cameron Boyle
Remembering the Huia: Extinction and Nostalgia in a Bird World ......................... 66

A. Frances Johnson
First Dog, Last Dog: New Intertextual Short Fictions about Canis lupus familiaris .... 92

Peta Tait
Space on Par ............................................................................ 101
Deborah Wardle
Life and Death with Horses: Gillian Mears’ Novel Foal’s Bread ........................................ 110

Justine Groizard
Greyhounds and Racing Industry Participants:
A Look at the New South Wales Greyhound Racing Community ........................................ 133

Helen Kopnina
If Animals Could Talk:
Reflection on the Dutch Party for Animals in Student Assignments .................................. 158

Gonzalo Villanueva
‘Animals Are Their Best Advocates’:
Interspecies Relations, Embodied Actions, and Entangled Activism ...................................... 190

Alex Lockwood

Wendy Woodward

Hayley Singer
Review: ‘Let’s Find Out! What Do I Make?’: Review of Kathryn Gillespie,

Zoei Sutton
Review: Jacob Bull, Tora Holmberg and Cecilia Åsberg, editors, Animal Places:
Lively Cartographies of Human-Animal Relations. Routledge, 2018. 276pp ............................ 231

Peta Tait
Review: James Hevia, Animal Labor and Colonial Warfare.
Chicago University Press, 2018. 328pp ................................................................. 234

Denise Russell
Review: Lesley A. Sharp, Animal Ethos: The Morality of Human-Animal Encounters

Wendy Woodward
Review: Michael Lundblad, editor, Animalities: Literary and Cultural Studies
Editorial

This issue of the journal includes papers on a broad range of topics – from animals in the Internet of Things to an activist/scholar’s account of embodied actions emerging from interspecies interrelations.

The issue begins with a Provocation from the Field by pattrice jones, co-founder of VINE Sanctuary, an LGBTQ-run farmed animal sanctuary in the USA. pattrice’s exploration of possible emu perspectives – in the contexts of human migration, invasion, the Great Emu War of 1932 and the continuing effects of consumer capitalism globally for emus who are designated as an exotic commodity – invites us to reflect on ourselves as one species in relation to others.

Nicola Evans and Alison Moore introduce animal studies perspectives to a discussion of the Internet of Things. The paper considers the impact of discourse surrounding smart objects and robots, which draws heavily on animals, on real nonhuman animals and on human-animal relations.

Kirsty Dunn’s article (developed from a paper awarded the Australasian Animal Studies Association’s 2017 Denise Russell Postgraduate Prize for Animal Ethics) considers plant-based diets within Māori culture in Aotearoa New Zealand. The paper explores the formulation of personal food ethics of veganism in various online food blogs by Māori authors in the context of ‘values of kaitiakitanga (guardianship, stewardship, and caretaking), hauora (holistic health and wellbeing) and rangatiratanga (self determination, sovereignty, and leadership)’.

Cameron Boyle’s ‘Remembering the Huia’ examines this extinct bird’s ongoing cultural life, discussing its representations in the art of Bill Hammond and Sally Ann McIntyre as examples of ‘reflective nostalgia’.

A. Frances Johnson offers two short fiction works that mindfully decentre humans – reimagining the death of Argos in The Odyssey in ‘The Death of the First Dog’ and presenting an aging dog and a human companion in ‘The Carrier’.
Peta Tait’s short performance text _Space on Par_, which presents theatrical characters who blur species identities, takes a lighthearted approach to the pressing issue of human refusal to recognise the spatial needs of other species for survival.

Deborah Wardle employs a zoocritical approach in her discussion of Gillian Mears’ novel _Foal’s Bread_ which underscores the importance of horses – their individuality and agency – in the fortunes of a family in rural Australia; a family whose relationships with each other and with their horses Wardle depicts as ‘corrugated’.

Justine Groizard provides findings from a fieldwork study over two years on greyhound racing in the state of New South Wales in Australia, distinguishing between various participants’ perspectives and practices to provide insights on greyhound racing in the wake of recent controversies including live baiting and animal cruelty.

Helen Kopnina presents an analysis of university students’ views on the Dutch Party for Animals over several years which reveal both their ‘nuanced positions on the anthropocentrism-ecocentrism continuum’ and ability to critically rethink human centrism.

Gonzalo Villanueva argues that animals need not be portrayed as ‘voiceless’, developing from his experience with the Coalition Against Duck Shooting in Victoria the proposition of ‘entangled activism’.

I hope you find lots in this issue that is new and compelling; and please remember that the journal welcomes submissions from established and emerging animal studies scholars.

Melissa Boyde, Editor

Associate editors on this issue: Philip Armstrong, Sally Borrell and Michael Griffiths.
Cameron Boyle is a research fellow in the Landscape DesignLab at Lincoln University. His research centers on the intersection of landscape and culture in New Zealand, with a particular focus on conservation and protected areas.

Kirsty Dunn (Te Aupōuri, Te Rarawa) is a PhD candidate and creative writer based at the University of Canterbury. She completed her Master’s thesis Inherit the World, Devour the Earth: Representations of Western Meat Production and Consumption in Contemporary Fiction at the University of Canterbury in 2015, and her doctoral thesis analyses, from a kaupapa Māori perspective, representations of animals and human-animal relationships in Māori writing in English.

Nicola Evans is Senior Lecturer in Media and Communications at the University of Wollongong, Australia. She has published widely on film and literature for journals such as Screen, Textual Practice, Canadian Journal of Film Studies, International Journal of Cultural Studies, Culture Theory and Critique, Discourse, and Continuum. This research represents part of a new project looking at ideas about human-animal love and discourses of animality deployed around emerging technologies.

Justine Groizard is currently working on her anthropology PhD at the University of Newcastle, Australia. In her work she explores political divisions and tensions and the animals that are enmeshed in these debates, in particular, how greyhounds play a role in the worlds of greyhound racing and greyhound rescue across New South Wales, Australia. While seeking to explore an emic perspective within these distinct (and not so distinct) communities, Justine considers the role that class and gender play in the co-constructions of misrecognitions, power struggles and stigma faced by those who consider animals to constitute a significant part of their lives, and of who they are.
A. Frances Johnson is a poet, novelist and painter, and is Senior Lecturer in Creative Writing at the University of Melbourne where she lectures in Poetry and Contemporary Eco-fiction. She is the author of a novel (Eugene’s Falls, Arcadia, 2007) and three collections of poetry. In 2015, she won the Griffith University-Josephine Ulrick Poetry Prize for ‘The Book of Interdictions’. Her most recent poetry collection, Rendition for Harp and Kalashnikov (Puncher and Wattmann, 2018) was shortlisted for the 2018 Melbourne Prize for Literature Best Writing Award. She was the 2017 recipient of the Australia Council residency in the B.R. Whiting Studio in Rome.

Pattrice Jones is a cofounder of VINE Sanctuary, an LGBTQ-led farmed animal sanctuary. VINE was the first sanctuary to develop a method for rehabilitating roosters used in cockfighting, and Jones has written and spoken extensively about the uses of roosters and other animals in the social construction of gender. VINE also has taken the lead in ‘queering’ animal liberation, organizing dozens of events and publications on the intersections between speciesism and homophobia dating back to 2002. Jones has taught college and university courses on the theory and praxis of social change activism as well as in the fields of psychology, gender studies, and LGBTQ studies. VINE works frequently with scholars and has made it a priority to bridge the gap between academia and activism. Jones has authored two books — The Oxen at the Intersection (Lantern, 2014) and Aftershock: Confronting Trauma in a Violent World (Lantern, 2007) — and contributed to numerous edited volumes, including Animaladies (Bloomsbury, 2018); Animal Oppression and Capitalism (Praeger, 2017); Ecofeminism (Bloomsbury, 2014); Sister Species (University of Illinois Press, 2011); and Contemporary Anarchist Studies (Routledge, 2009).

Helen Kopnina h.kopnina@hhs.nl (PhD Cambridge University, 2002) is currently employed at The Hague University of Applied Science in The Netherlands, coordinating Sustainable Business program and conducting research within three main areas: environmental sustainability, environmental education and biological conservation. Kopnina is the author of over ninety peer reviewed articles and (co)author and (co)editor of fifteen books.
Alex Lockwood is Senior Lecturer in the Centre for Research in Media and Cultural Studies at the University of Sunderland, UK. He is the author of The Pig in Thin Air (Lantern, 2016) and The Chernobyl Privileges (RoundFire, 2019) and writes about multispecies relations, vegan lifestyles and nonhuman advocacy across fictional, nonfictional and academic forms.

Alison Rotha Moore is a Senior Lecturer in English Language and Linguistics at the University of Wollongong. She holds research degrees in linguistics and public health and has published widely on the semiotics of agency, identity, individuation, and care across a range of contexts including ARC- and NHMRC-funded research. An intersecting line of inquiry is on 'register theory' – a framework for relating language and context. She is currently working on how these themes function in discourses about animals, in particular ecological discourses, food discourses, and the discourse of robotics and the Internet of Things. Alison co-convenes the Animal Studies Research Network at the University of Wollongong.

Denise Russell is a Research Fellow in Philosophy at the University of Wollongong. She designed and taught a course on Humanity and Animality at the University of Sydney in the 1980s and started the journal Animal Issues. She has two books and many articles in print and is currently working on a new website on alternatives to animal testing in Australian research.

Hayley Singer’s research and writing practice traverse the fields of creative writing, ecofeminism and animal studies. She is currently completing her first book, The Fleischgeist: A Haunting, to be published by the Animal Publics series of Sydney University Press.

Zoei Sutton is a PhD candidate in Sociology at Flinders University. Her doctoral thesis critically examines the navigation of human-companion animal relationships, particularly the negotiation of asymmetrical power relations inside and outside of the home, and the impact on research when species inclusive methods are pursued.
Peta Tait is Professor of Theatre at La Trobe University and Fellow of the Australian Academy of the Humanities. Recent books include: the co-edited Feminist Ecologies: Changing Environments in the Anthropocene (2018); Fighting Nature: Travelling Menageries, Animal Acts and War Shows (2016); the co-edited The Routledge Circus Studies Reader (2016); the edited Great European Stage Directors: Antoine, Stanislavski and St Denis, vol. one (Bloomsbury 2018) and Emotion (Bloomsbury forthcoming). Her most recent play, Eleanor and Mary Alice, about Eleanor Roosevelt and Mary Alice Evatt and human rights, art and war was remounted in 2018 for the 70-year anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Helen Tiffin FAHA, is an Adjunct Professor at the University of Wollongong, Australia, specialising in post-colonial literatures and literary theory, and animal studies. She held a Senior Canada Research Chair at Queen’s University, Canada, and has been Professor of English at the Universities of Queensland and Tasmania. Her books include (with Robert Cribb and Helen Gilbert), Wild Man from Borneo: A Cultural History of the Orangutan (University of Hawai’i Press, 2014); (with Graham Huggan), Postcolonial Ecocriticism: Literature, Animals, Environment (Routledge, 2010); and (with Bill Ashcroft and Gareth Griffiths) The Empire Writes Back: Post-Colonial Literatures, Theory and Practice (Routledge, 1989; revised edition, 2002). Her most recent article is ‘Do Insects Feel Pain?’ (Animal Studies Journal vol. 5, no. 1, 2017).

Gonzalo Villanueva received his PhD from the University of Melbourne. He is the author of A Transnational History of the Australian Animal Movement, 1970-2015. His broader research interests include human-animal relations, animal history, environmental history, and activism.

Deborah Wardle was awarded her PhD from RMIT University. Her doctorate explores climate fiction’s ways of ‘storying with groundwater’ through a posthuman lens, focusing on how Anthropocene fiction handles the temporal, scalar and interrelational qualities of subterranean aquifers. Deborah completed a Masters in Creative Writing, Publishing and Editing and a Master of Arts in Women’s Studies at University of Melbourne. Deborah has peer-reviewed articles in