University's Prize-winning Landscape

The University has again won first prize in the Public Institutions category of the annual City of Wollongong Garden Competition. The University also won a special award for the landscape associated with Kooloobong.

At the presentation of awards held in the Wollongong Botanic Gardens, the University was specifically commended for its role in the physical development of the region.

The campus landscape also attracted much favourable comment at this year's Open Day and many enthusiastic comments were recorded on the questionnaire which was distributed to visitors.

The University community should be proud of their campus – and congratulations go to the Buildings and Grounds Branch, particularly to the Landscape Gardeners, for their efforts.

K.E. Baumber, Vice-Principal (Administration)

11th Sir Richard Kirby Lecture

Industrial Relations in 1989: is a New Province for Law and Order Achievable? was the theme chosen by Mr Bert Evans, Chief Executive of the Metal Trades Association, for the 11th Sir Richard Kirby Lecture. The Lecture was given at The University of Wollongong on October 16.

The talk was preceded by a CWALMS book launch and prizes presentation.

Prizewinners were Jennifer Jurman, who won the IRS prize for gaining highest total marks in both introductory industrial relations courses in 1988; and Frances Murphy, who carried off the Hilda Kirby Prize for best essay evaluating the 1989 Sir Richard Kirby lecture as part of the coursework for ECON140/240 Wage Determination in Australia.

Visit by Dr Barry Kistnasamy from South Africa

Dr Barry Kistnasamy of the National Medical and Dental Association of South Africa addressed the University of Wollongong with a talk entitled Apartheid is a Health Hazard on Tuesday October 16. He is a South African doctor visiting Australia and New Zealand in order to discuss the social and economic situation within South Africa with particular reference to the calamitous effects of apartheid on the health of the majority of South Africans.

Dr Kistnasamy reported that a few weeks ago, as part of the current Campaign of Defiance, thousands of Africans, Coloureds and Indians turned up at whites-only hospitals seeking treatment. They see their acceptance as patients, even though it may well prove to be temporary, as a major victory in their attempt to gain equal access to health care and in their broader struggle to create a democratic post-apartheid South Africa.

After the talk Dr Kistnasamy answered questions from Wollongong academics about academic links with South Africa and he applauded the current policy of the Federation of Australian University Staff Associations which has resolved 'to join the growing international movement to boycott South Africa and its institutions by proclaiming an academic boycott of South African Universities, subject to the proviso that the boycott is specifically not intended to inhibit personal contacts between Australian academics and anti-racist academics in South Africa'.

The issue of who is and who isn't 'anti-racist' raised considerable discussion and Dr Kistnasamy said that it was up to professional associations such as the National Medical and Dental Association and other members of the African Democratic Movement to make those judgements on behalf of progressive academics in South Africa.

Staff International Exchange Program

The University of Wollongong has a staff and student exchange agreement with Montana State University in the USA. Recently the MSU approached us with a proposal for a specific staff exchange in the areas of student admissions and nutrition.

The purpose of the notice is to solicit interest in these specific areas as well as gauge the general level of interest in this program. So, if you have a yen to live and work overseas and gain international experience in your area of work, please forward an expression of interest (including a resumé) to Robyn Weekes, Personnel Services Branch, by November 3. Possible arrangements for your replacement should accompany your expression of interest.

The general terms of this program include:

1. salary paid by the sending institution,
2. travel costs paid by the sending institution,
3. the preferred period of exchange would be 6-12 months,
4. assistance will be given by the host institution in arranging accommodation; however, the monetary responsibility for accommodation rests with the visiting staff member.

The University is anxious to provide this opportunity to staff members but the efficient and effective operation of the University must be the governing factor in releasing staff seeking to participate.

Distinguished Visitor

Paul Willemen of the British Film Institute gave a paper on '3rd Cinema, theories and practices', to the New Literatures Research Centre in the Department of English on Friday October 20. ANZAAS Congress 1990

Planning for the 1990 ANZAAS Congress in Hobart next February is proceeding well, with around 20 papers promised at this stage.

The Final Announcement and Registration booklets have been sent to the 1200 individuals who replied to earlier circulars, but the organisations feel that there may be some people who might decide to attend after reading the booklet.

Booklets are available from Gloria Wood, Secretary to the Planning and Marketing Branch, ext. 3110.

Staff back blacklist

Wollongong University academics at a meeting of FAUSA on October 17 said they would support a United Nations blacklisting of academics who chose to work in South Africa.

The Federation of Australian University Staff Associations acknowledged that the proposal was still to be ratified by the United Nations, but hoped their stand would push the proposal along.

UK Fellowships for Australian Scientists

The London-based Royal Society is planning a new program of postdoctoral fellowships to increase contact between younger scientists in Australia and their counterparts in the UK. The program of two-year Royal Society Endeavour Fellowships, as they will be known, will offer five awards annually to enable Australian scientists to undertake original research in British laboratories. The program will be run by the Royal Society in association with the Australian Academy of Science and the Australian Academy of Technological Sciences and Engineering. Selection will begin later this year; the first successful applicants are expected to arrive in Britain between April and October 1990. The fellowships are the result of talks in Australia during a visit by the then UK Secretary of State for Education and Science, Mr Kenneth Baker, and the President of the Royal Society, Sir George Porter.

The Royal Society is an independent, self-governing learned society founded in 1660 for the promotion of the natural sciences, including mathematics and all applied aspects such as engineering and medicine. It encourages both national and international activities through the exchange and development of scientific ideas and knowledge through meetings and publications, by grants and research appointments, through exchange fellowships and collaboration with overseas academies. The Royal Society Esso Energy Award is made annually for outstanding contributions to the advancement of science, engineering or technology. The Society's expenditure this year will be around £11.5 million, of which £4 million is derived from private investments and donations and goes to support the Society itself along with a number of fellowships and other activities.

Applications for the Royal Society Endeavour Fellowships are invited from Australian and New Zealand postdoctoral scientists of up to 30 years of age. Prospective applicants should write for application forms and information sheet to The International Exchanges Officer, the Australian Academy of Science, GPO Box 783, Canberra ACT 2601.

Applications close on October 31.

A booklet containing a good deal of detail about the scheme is held by Janet Cook in Planning and Marketing, ext. 3027.

AFUW Annual Dinner

The Illawarra Branch of the Australian Federation of University Women will hold its Annual Dinner on Wednesday November 1 at 7 pm in the Kemira room. A period of assimilation

Guest of honour at the opening of the University Union's Multicultural Week (on Monday October 16) was Al Grasby, who will go down in the history books as a supporter sans pareil for multiculturalism during his period as Minister for Immigration in the Whitlam government.

In his speech Mr Grasby dwelt on the changes that had taken place in Australian society since the days when children were forcibly taken away from the care of their parents, and on the fact that today Australia was going through a period of assimilation – when, instead of immigrants being under pressure to abandon their own cultures in favour of a British-based one, they are actively encouraged to retain, and to spread, their own cultures to the benefit of Australian society as a whole.

The Week on multicultural activities was officially opened by the Director of the University International Office, Mr Eric Meadows.

Chaos in Australia

Forward planning on track

The adjoining table, which appeared in Job Prospects Australia, shows a projected employment rate among professionals for the next five years. Among the factors thrown up in the table is that increased employment rates for journalists and lawyers are expected to rise by between 10 and 19 per cent. The decision by the University to open a Postgraduate School of Journalism (first intake of students in 1990) and the establishment of a Faculty of Law (first student intake in 1991) is, therefore, well timed....
