Thampapillai To Malaysia

Dr. Dodo J. Thampapillai of the Department of Economics has been awarded an Australian Universities International Development Programme grant to support a study leave project at the Universiti Pertanian Malaysia. He will be in Malaysia from 18 August to 3 September, 1983, and 10 November to 10 December, 1984.

Dr. Thampapillai will research the Display of Trade-offs Between Poverty Relief and GNP Maximisation Policies In The Malaysian Economy.

The objectives are:

- (i) to identify specific target groups in poverty and prevailing relief policies for such target groups;
- (ii) to identify the relationship between poverty relief policies and policies oriented towards the maximisation of GNP;

- (iii) to use the relationship identified in (ii) to display the range of trade-offs between poverty relief and maximisation of GNP; and
- (iv) to use the display of trade-offs for the search of an adequate policy of development, which involves redistribution of income and economic growth.

The research will involve the formulation of a mathematical programming model for the macro-economy. The model will be designed to maximise GNP through various national enterprises, subject to the conventional resource availability constraints. A special feature of the model will be the specification of poverty relief policies as constraint targets. The relationship between GNP and poverty relief could then be elicited through a variation of these constraint targets. Knowledge of this relationship will permit the display of trade-offs between maximisation of GNP and poverty relief.

AVCC News

The Australian Vice-Chancellors' Committee met on Tuesday, 10 May 1983 at the University of Auckland during that University's Centenary Celebrations and this is a report on the principal matters which were considered at that meeting, and other matters which have been occupying the attention of the AVCC in recent times.

* Meeting with Minister for Education and Youth Affairs: AVCC representatives (Professor D.E. Caro, Professor L.M. Birt and the Secretary) met with the Minister for Education and Youth Affairs (Senator the Honourable Susan Ryan) on 30 March 1983. The matters discussed with the Minister were: participation in and access to university education; discussion of this matter ranged over such topics as structure of courses, counselling, unemployed school leavers, off-campus studies, disadvantaged groups and overseas students; funding; student assistance; Ralph Report on Management Education; Academic Salaries Tribunal; Tenure; University-Industry Relations; Role of Commonwealth Tertiary Education Commission.

* Structure of Commonwealth Tertiary Education Commission: When the AVCC representatives met the Minister for Education and Youth Affairs, they stressed the desirability of her and the Government seeking the advice of the Commonwealth Tertiary Education Commission before taking decisions on matters relating to tertiary education. Subsequently, the AVCC wrote to the Minister about the structure of CTEC. It told her that the AVCC believes that it would be undesirable to restructure CTEC and its Councils so as to include representatives of various special interest groups. The AVCC is of the view that a restructuring along these lines would be undesirable as it is essential that CTEC be seen to be an independent body giving independent advice to Government. This would not be the case if members of CTEC and its Councils represented special interest groups.

* AVCC Submission to Universities' Council 1985-87 Triennium: The AVCC has forwarded to the Universities' Council a submission for the 1985-87 Triennium. Copies of the submission, which deals with some matters which are of importance to the Australian university system, have been sent to all universities. The matters covered in the submission are: the procedures used for funding universities; opportunities for participation of young people in university education; strengthening the research activities of the universities; support for libraries in the supply and maintenance of large items of equipment; staffing arrangements.

* Review of Australia's Overseas Aid: On 17 April 1983 the Minister for Foreign Affairs announced that he had set up a high level committee to undertake a major review of Australia's program of development assistance to developing countries. Because of the Universities' considerable commitment to Australia's overseas aid program, the AVCC will be making a submission to the Committee of Review.

* Meeting with Australian Union of Students: On 21 March 1983, the AVCC Executive met with representatives of the Australian Union of Students. The matters discussed were: student finances; university funding; course accreditation and transfer; student services; women's access to education; private funding of university research and student unionism.

* Aboriginal Education: In a letter to the AVCC, the former Secretary of the Department of Education (Mr. K.N. Jones) wrote:

'In recent years a number of reports and surveys have highlighted the fact that on a population basis Aboriginals are very much under represented at the higher education level when compared with other groups in Australian society. This is particularly so in respect of universities. This imbalance is apparent not only in terms of general access to higher education, but also in the range of courses being studied, retention rates and success experienced in studies. A related area is the disproportionately low representation of Aboriginals on staff employed at universities and colleges of advanced education.'

As a result of its consideration of this letter, AVCC representatives will be meeting with senior representatives of the Department of Education and Youth Affairs and Aboriginal Affairs on 23 May 1983 to discuss the question of Aboriginal access to higher education.

* Report of the AVCC Committee of Review of Student Finances: When the previous Federal Government indicated to the AVCC that it was not willing to mount an inquiry into all aspects of student assistance - TEAS, postgraduate awards, loans and fees - the AVCC itself appointed a Committee of Review in June 1982 to carry out a comprehensive study of student finances and prepare a report for submission to the Government. The AVCC has now received that report

* Australian Research Grants Scheme: The AVCC has written to the Minister for Science and Technology informing him that extensive additional financial support is needed to maintain the effectiveness of the Australian Research Grants Scheme. In its letter, the AVCC has commented on: the decline in real funding of ARGs; the incapacity of ARGs to fund adequately projects of sound quality; the inability of ARGs to fund new research initiatives.

The AVCC has urged the Minister to give special consideration to the needs of the ARGs in the context of the Federal Budget for 1983-84.

* Copyright in legal materials: The AVCC has been advised that law schools in Australian universities have experienced difficulties because of the provisions of the Commonwealth's Copyright Act. These allow the copying for educational purposes of material in which there is copyright only if certain forms are completed. If they fail to comply with the Act it is an offence.

Law schools generally reproduced a great deal of statutory, case law and other legal material for discussion in class. There are arguable claims to copyright in that material made by governments, law reporting Councils, judges, publishers and others who are seeking to exploit their alleged copyright in connection with the development of systems for computer retrieval of legal materials. But that aim does not really justify failure to grant licences similar to those granted by the Commonwealth.

The AVCC has agreed to take this matter up and, as a first step, has made representations to the Standing Committee of Attorneys General. While the principal benefit in relation to the educational use of legal materials would flow to law schools, if the representations are successful, other faculties will also be assisted.

Document Processing System

An invitation is extended to all interested members of staff to attend a demonstration of The Computer Centre Document Processing Service. The demonstration will be given by James Hartley, the Document Processing Officer, and will include:-

- Document and Job Selection by Menu
- Text input/editing via the Beehive terminal
- An overview of T_EX, the document processing programme
- Output on the QUME and NDK high quality printers
- Phototypesetting on the Compugraphic 8400.

The demonstration will be conducted in the Document Processing Section (within Computer Reception, to the East of the Computer Room in A.C.S.) from 2.30pm to 3.30pm each day from Tuesday, June 14 until Friday, June 24, or until interest abates.

Because of space restrictions, numbers at each demonstration will need to be limited, could you please phone Helen on ext.926 or James Hartley on ext.479 to give prior notice of your intention to attend.

At the demonstration, James will also describe the Document Processing Service that he is setting up. The main objective of the service is to make the central facilities, including the phototypesetter, available to all sectors of the campus quickly — without the pre-requisites of a departmental terminal and training in the system. The service will be funded by a charge for service policy. A list of rates, based on costs, will be available at the demonstration.
