Reid Delves Into County Clare

Richard Reid, a research student in the Department of History, has been collecting data over the last 3 or 4 years and has stored a huge wealth of information about County Clare people on the University of Wollongong's computer. The computer programme has been developed by Steve Harrison, the Social Science Programmer.

Reid's mammoth accomplishment provides details on 45,000 Irish people who have travelled 13,000 miles away from home, on voyages of 3½ months duration, to begin life anew under the skies of the Southern Cross. Mr. Reid has very kindly donated to the Clare Heritage Centre at Corofin a large volume containing print-outs of the details on Clare immigrants alone - all 6,038 of them listed in the course of his research. This monumental, prestigious record, is in three parts.

Firstly, there is an alphabetical index containing surname, Christian name, age, place of origin in Clare, name of ship and date of arrival at Sydney. For instance Mary Moroney, age 24, from Kilrush arrived on The Lady Keeneway on 8th December 1854.

The second part lists all ships - two hundred and fifty of them - engaged in the trade, and catalogues alphabetically all Clare people on each individual ship. Some vessels had over eighty Clare passengers, while the overall average from the county was about twenty-five per boat. There are details in this section concerning religion, names of parents, with addenda as to whether they were living or dead; if alive where? - at home in Ireland or in New South Wales, or perhaps on board ship or indeed in some English, Scottish or American city.

A long article on Richard Reid's work has been published by the Shannon Archaeological and Historical Society in "The Other Clare" - March 1983.

Wollongong Jaycees followed by defending the statement "Poverty is a Blessing" against the Wollongong University Debating Society.

REVIEW OF UNIVERSITY CURRICULA

The Curricula Review Committee (established by the Academic Senate) is considering a wide range of issues in relation to the subject offerings within the Faculties sector. Its first task is to advise Senate on the implications of the introduction of the unit system. The proposal for this system, which has been accepted in principle by Senate, is based on a unit value of subjects in which a minimum of 24 units would be required for the degrees of Arts, Commerce, Mathematics and Science (in place of the present 144 credit points), i.e., 1 unit will be the equivalent of 6 credit points.

The Curricula Review Committee is inviting comments from any members of the University on any matters relating to subject offerings, but particularly on the following issues:

1. Difficulties relating to the introduction of the unit system and proposals for resolving those difficulties;
2. Subject relativities within and between departments/schools (in content, contact hours and work loads);
3. 100-level subject proliferations and the possibility of core offerings;
4. subjects offered at more than one level; and
5. multi-departmental numbering and Faculty numbering.

Comments on any of these matters should be forwarded to Mr. J.W. Langridge, Senior Assistant Secretary.

Research Grants

RESERVE BANK FELLOWSHIPS IN ECONOMIC POLICY

The Reserve Bank of Australia invites applications for Fellowships in Economic Policy for 1984. These awards, which will be financed from the Bank's Economic and Financial Research Fund, are provided to support full-time research on applied aspects of Australian economic policy.

Fellowships are offered at four salary levels. It is not envisaged that awards will be made at all levels. The awards offered will be determined in light of applications received.

Appointments will normally be for a term of one year, although shorter term appointments would be considered. The awards are tenable at universities and other suitable tertiary institutions in Australia with which arrangements have been made by the Bank.
