Creating unity within an album for compositions defined as "jazz style"

Edward Goyer
University of Wollongong

Recommended Citation
NOTE

This online version of the thesis may have different page formatting and pagination from the paper copy held in the University of Wollongong Library.

UNIVERSITY OF WOLLONGONG

COPYRIGHT WARNING

You may print or download ONE copy of this document for the purpose of your own research or study. The University does not authorise you to copy, communicate or otherwise make available electronically to any other person any copyright material contained on this site. You are reminded of the following:

Copyright owners are entitled to take legal action against persons who infringe their copyright. A reproduction of material that is protected by copyright may be a copyright infringement. A court may impose penalties and award damages in relation to offences and infringements relating to copyright material. Higher penalties may apply, and higher damages may be awarded, for offences and infringements involving the conversion of material into digital or electronic form.
Certification

I, Edward Goyer, declare that this thesis, submitted in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the award Master of Creative Arts Research, in the department of Creative Arts, University of Wollongong, is wholly my own work unless otherwise referenced or acknowledged. The document has not been submitted for qualification at any other academic institution.

Edward Goyer

26 March 2008
Table of Contents

Chapter 1

1.1 Introduction .................................................................1

1.2 Analysis Methods ..........................................................3

Chapter 2

3 Sided Coin (The Template) Analysis

2.1 Repetition .................................................................6

2.2 Development ............................................................10

2.3 Unity .................................................................13

2.4 Use of New Material ...................................................15

Chapter 3

New Compositions

3.1 Creating New Compositions from The Template..............17

3.2 Dichotomies ............................................................18

3.3 Sunday Catch Up Plan ..................................................20

3.4 Time Stories ............................................................22
Chapter 4
The Use of “Jazz Style” In My Compositions

4.1 Defining the Term “Jazz Style”.................................25
4.2 Interaction and Interplay within the Ensemble ..............28
4.3 “Jazz Style” Interaction in My Compositions..............30

List of References .........................................................41

Appendices

Original Compositions

Dichotomies ..............................................................45
Time Stories ..............................................................48
3 Sided Coin ............................................................49
Sunday Catch Up Plan .................................................59

Recordings

Recordings of Original Compositions ..............................61
Unity is an important factor when I compose music as it creates a sense of logic elements upon which the language of music can be communicated to the listeners. By the term ‘listener’ I am referring to anyone, novice or educated, who listens to my music. Without the logic of unity, communication breaks down and the language of music consisting of both emotional and structural elements is no longer experienced by the listener.

As part of my compositional approach, I have developed a set of rules that would allow unity to be created throughout the pieces to be recorded on the album. During the compositional process, it occurred to me that the largest unifying factor between all my compositions is that they were all written in “jazz fusion style”.

If I was to consider style as a unifying feature, I needed to come up with a definition for what I believe qualifies my compositions as having been stylistically composed and performed as jazz, a major part of which, is the process of interplay and interaction between members of the ensemble.

All the compositions on the album were recorded live with no multi-tracking or overdubbing. Using a live recording creates the maximum amount of interaction and interplay amongst the ensemble members necessary for my definition of jazz style in my compositions. It is my aim that the listener should be able to experience unifying factors between my compositions in some form while listening to the recording provided. They should also be able to recognize elements of interaction and interplay between ensemble members creating a sense of jazz style throughout my compositions.
Acknowledgements

This Master of Creative Arts Research exegesis was supervised by Dr. Houston Dunleavy. I would like to thank Kjell Goyer for his musical suggestions and advice over the years. Gordon Rytmeister, Mark Costa, Kelvin Haisman and Adrian Petlevanny for playing on the recording of my compositions and doing such a great job of it. I would also like to thank Astid Holz for recording my compositions at JMC Studios in Surry Hills (Sydney).