Beyond early intervention and 'woodshedding': using narrative to provide a new context for applying a recovery paradigm after the early phase of psychosis

Alan Rosen
University of Wollongong, alan.rosen@sydney.edu.au

David Shiers
National EI Development Programme, UK

Ann Shiers
Staffordshire Moorlands Primary Care Trust
Beyond early intervention and 'woodshedding': using narrative to provide a new context for applying a recovery paradigm after the early phase of psychosis

Abstract
Abstract presented at the 9th International Conference on Early Psychosis - To the New Horizon, 17 November 2014, Tokyo, Japan

Keywords
beyond, intervention, psychosis, phase, after, paradigm, recovery, applying, context, provide, narrative, early, woodshedding

Disciplines
Education | Social and Behavioral Sciences

Publication Details
Rosen, A., Shiers, D. & Shiers, A. (2014). Beyond early intervention and 'woodshedding': using narrative to provide a new context for applying a recovery paradigm after the early phase of psychosis. Early Intervention in Psychiatry: the development, onset and treatment of emerging mental disorders, 8 (Supplement S1), 32.

This journal article is available at Research Online: http://ro.uow.edu.au/sspapers/1325
Beyond early intervention and ‘woodshedding’: using narrative to provide a new context for applying a recovery paradigm after the early phase of psychosis

Alan Rosen, 1,4 David Shiers, 2 Ann Shiers 3

1 University of Sydney, 2 Former Joint Lead on National EI Development Programme, UK, 3 Staffordshire Moorlands Primary Care Trust, UK, 4 University of Wollongong, Australia

This presentation considers how early intervention in psychosis can support a recovery paradigm.

Methods: Significant numbers of those developing a first episode of psychosis are on a path to a persisting and potentially lifelong condition. Constituting the schizophrenia spectrum disorders, such conditions demand the particular qualities and attitudes inherent within recovery based practice. This presentation explores some of these qualities and attitudes by examining the tension between a traditional ‘clinical’ narrative used by many health providers and a ‘human’ narrative of users of services and their families.

Results: Key features and constructs of recovery practice as they relate to the EI paradigm are presented. These include: woodshedding, turning points, discontinuous improvement models, therapeutic optimism, gradualism and narratives of storytelling. We also highlight the role of family members and other close supporters and believe their potential contribution requires greater consideration.

Conclusions: The early intervention (EI) paradigm can resonate and indeed offer a stronghold for recovery-based practice where traditional mental health services have sometimes struggled. Conversely, failure of caregivers to provide such an approach in the early phase of illness can cause unnecessary and sometimes disastrous consequences.