Abstract
AT THIS TIME (for Clare), TO EMILY KATE ON HER BIRTH 11 August 1994 (for the original Emily, Marina, Greg, Rebecca)
Syd Harrex

AT THIS TIME
(for Clare)

Out of magpie throats, white water music somersaults over Adam’s dark apples, bosom slopes affording salmon shadows
as banks do bream, as blackened skies hide trout.
All the lusting and listing on the land,
as its winds rip bible tissue pages,
are incomprehensible without hands –
on seeding and reaping, fringeing vineyards.
Retirement here is spiritual recess, comings and goings of eggs, cheese and beer;
you always collect anxiety mail
from the post-mistress, never telegrams from T.S. Eliot on behalf of God.
And that’s the fluke truth: beautifully odd.

TO EMILY KATE ON HER BIRTH
11 August 1994
(for the original Emily, Marina, Greg, Rebecca)

I bet you are robust, and shout a bit even now. Mar your mother’s sleep at times by all means, but don’t neglect the aftermath of smiles, finger clinging, the tenacious suction of each nipple – unspiteful of course, finding there all imperatives of love.
But there’s a father in your envelope as well. Feed him enough umbilical rope and in years to come all you need to do is wind him back like a big clumsy fish.
Watch the weathers inside the house and learn the outer seasonal arrays. Silence without meekness; trust with honour; belief in yourself: these surpass the must-be grief.
