NURSING COURSE FOR UNIVERSITY

Professor Peter Roush, Director of the University's Institute of Advanced Education, announced that the University's first intake into Nursing would take place... in 1985. The University of Wollongong will be the only university in New South Wales offering the course which is to be known as Diploma of Applied Science (Nursing). All other nursing courses will be offered at colleges of advanced education.

Professor Rousch also announced the appointment of Mr. Bruce Partridge, currently Head of the Illawarra School of Nursing, as Co-ordinator of Nursing in the University's new School of Health Sciences. He will be assisted by Mrs. Jan Pincombe from the Western Australian School of Nursing. Both Mr. Partridge and Mrs. Pincombe have had extensive practical experience in hospitals as well as in nurse education. Professor Rousch expressed confidence in the University's capacity to provide a programme that would reflect both the best of current nursing practice and the benefits that derive from a course at the tertiary level.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE ON WORK, INCOME AND LEISURE IN THE COMING YEARS

A Conference will be held at Wollongong University on September 28 and 29 on the theme of work, income and leisure in the coming years. The Conference, jointly organized by the Department of Economics and Centre for Technology and Social Change, will focus on the effects that continuing high levels of unemployment, changes to industrial structures and technology change are having on the Australian economy.

The speakers at the Conference include the Hon. Barry Jones, the Minister for Science and Technology; Professor Peter Dixon of Melbourne University; Professor Don Lamberton of Queensland University; Mary Gaudron QC and Mr. Justice Kirby. Thirty other papers will be given by academics, trade unionists, public servants and welfare workers from Australia and overseas.

The three major issues to be considered at the Conference are changes in the economy, work and leisure and the policy options available to cope with these changes.

Further details are available from the Conference Secretary, Dr. J. Mangan, Economics Department, University of Wollongong on (042) 270658.

24TH INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF PSYCHOLOGY

The 23rd International Congress of Psychology, just completed in Acapulco in Mexico, confirmed Sydney, Australia, as the venue for the 24th International Congress in 1988.

The decision to hold the congress in Australia is interesting not only because it is the first such congress to be held in the southern hemisphere but because it is to be part of the Australian Bicentenary celebrations.

Professor Ron King, Chairman of the 1988 International Congress Committee, said that the plans for the Australian programme, to be hosted by the Australian Psychological Society, had already attracted plenty of attention from psychologists around the world. Scientific papers were to be arranged so that the common interests of psychologists, biochemists, ergonomists and psychologists, working at the edges of these disciplines, would be met.

For the first time, a major congress in psychology will also include substantial sections open to the public and to special interest groups, such as business executives. Professor King said that neither the scientific nor the professional aspects of psychology were well understood by the public-at-large, and it was time that steps were taken to remedy this problem.

Professor King said that his committee was impressed by the willingness of the 50,000-strong American Psychological Association's decision to shift its 1988 Conference from New York to the West Coast so that American psychologists could move on to the congress in Australia.

The assembly and executive of the International Union of Psychological Sciences representing more than 100 member nations, has also greeted the Australian proposals enthusiastically, with officials from eastern and western Europe, China, Japan, India, North America, Central America and Africa pledging their support.

Principal venues for the congress in Sydney will include the Sydney Opera House, The Sydney Entertainment Centre and Sydney University.

SUBMISSION TO THE SENATE STANDING COMMITTEE ON SCIENCE, TECHNOLOGY AND THE ENVIRONMENT

The Committee is investigating "The adequacy of current mechanisms to investigate and monitor the introduction and current application of new technologies, and the need for a national technology assessment system better able to provide information and advice in relation to:

a) effects on unemployment, manpower planning and industrial relations;

b) extent of Australian control of technological change; and

c) policy planning for the purpose of encouraging, or directing technological change in Australia."

Against the background of funding shortfall set by the 1985-87 Guidelines released on 5 July the Federal Budget offers only an insignificant rise in student assistance, and nothing of substance for research funding.

Overall, education's share of total budget outlays has declined from 9.0% in 1976-77 under the former Liberal government to only 7.1% for the coming year. Higher education, as the CTEC pointed out in Volume 1 of its report, has borne the brunt of these reductions falling from 4.6% of total outlays in 1976-77 to 3.4% in 1983-84. In the coming year the portion of the education budget devoted to higher education will fall further.

The budget reduces the deficit substantially and also provides generous assistance in areas of expenditure which are arguably less important than education: the America's Cup defence fund will receive $6 million, for example, despite the fact that there is considerable potential in a sport such as yachting for corporate sponsorship. Private sector funding for university research, on the other hand, pointed to the Guidelines as the answer to inadequacies in higher education funding, is far more problematic and perhaps less appropriate.

This calls the government's priorities into question. FAUSA delegations hear from the Minister that, while the government has the best of intentions, the coffers are empty. We might be forgiven for thinking that the government's promises to improve and extend the higher education sector are exercises in cynicism which will result in universities and their staff being portrayed as the scapegoats for the failure of inadequately financed policies.

GOVERNMENT CREATES 900 NEW POSTGRADUATE AWARDS

The Federal Government would make available 900 new awards for full-time postgraduate students in Australia's higher education institutions next year, the Minister for Education and Youth Affairs, Senator Susan Ryan, announced.

Most of the awards would be for postgraduate research in universities.

'This emphasises the Government's firm commitment to basic research in Australia's universities,' Senator Ryan said.

The Minister said that of the 900 awards, 725 Research Awards would be for postgraduate research students in universities while the 145 Course Awards would be for Masters coursework students in universities.

A further 30 Advanced Education Institution Awards would go to Masters degree students in colleges of advanced education.

Senator Ryan said that the statistics of awards for postgraduate study in universities also reflected the high quality of applicants for these awards. In 1984 more than 85 per cent of winners of these awards had previously held Masters or Honours 1 qualifications.

In this year's Budget the Government allocated about $18.5 million to postgraduate awards - an increase of $1 million over the 1984 allocation.

NEWS FROM AUSTRALIA—CHINA COUNCIL

UNIVERSITIES FALLING BEHIND

Australian universities came in for some heavy discussion at the August meeting of the Australia-China Council in Melbourne.

The ACC expressed concern at the failure of Australian universities to support the Australian Government's initiatives in China, by teaching or research, particularly in the vital areas of economic relations, and China's domestic economic policies.

Reporting discussion at the meeting, the executive director of the ACC, Dr. Jocelyn Chey said:

"The problem for Australia is that our economic relationship with China is not being subjected to sustained analysis and public scrutiny by people who are qualified to comment and who also stand outside both government and business.

"... Worse still, tertiary level research, training and teaching on the Chinese economy is dangerously insufficient for a country which is according relations with that economy such prominence in Australia's own economic development."

Dr. Chey added that the ACC will be seeking further discussions with universities to remedy this situation.

TOP CHINESE ARTIST TO VISIT AUSTRALIA

A visit to Australia next month by a leading Chinese artist, Huang Miaozi, is expected to prove beneficial to the local artistic community.

Mr. Huang will be in Australia for two to three weeks at the invitation of the Australia-China Council to meet fellow artists and study local trends.

He is a council member of the Chinese Artists Association, a committee member of the All China Federation of Literary and Art Sciences and Art Adviser to "Chinese Literature", a leading Chinese publication.

"Mr. Huang is a very well-known critic, art historian and calligrapher whose articles are widely published in magazines and newspapers in China", says ACC executive director Dr. Jocelyn Chey. "We are trying to arrange for him to meet with local art students and enthusiasts and talk about developments in traditional Chinese painting, as well as speak on overall trends in Chinese art in his capacity as a critic.

"We are hoping that Mr. Huang's wife, Yu Feng, also an artist, will join him during his Australian visit. She visited Australian in 1982 at the invitation of the ACC."

ASSISTANCE TO HEARING IMPAIRED STUDENTS by Beth Urwin, Counselling Centre

The provision of $3000 for assistance has enabled the setting up of comprehensive services to hearing impaired students for the first time on this campus.

Two hearing impaired students were identified - one in Arts and one in Computing Science. Reg Trew (TAFE
With these two students, an information sheet about their needs and then I organised the implementation of their suggestions. The services should be fully operational from 3rd September, 1984.

The FM portable amplification system, the Phonic Ear will be purchased at a cost of $1102.71. This will be able to be used by future hearing impaired students along with previously purchased equipment and will be located with ERC.

One of the students is profoundly deaf but since she did not become deaf until she had developed good language skills, her needs were assessed as requiring notetaking and interpreting services available from fellow students and some taping and typing of lectures.

The other student is not profoundly deaf and the Phonic Ear is suitable for his use. As well, a notetaking service has been set up for lectures where the Phonic Ear is ineffectual. He experiences difficulty in asking lecturers to use the equipment and in ensuring himself a seat in the front row of the lecture theatre. I have written to his lecturers asking for co-operation on this matter. As well, I have circulated to all staff involved with these two students, an information sheet about appropriate teaching methods. There seems to be a real need for staff development in raising awareness of the particular learning problems of hearing impaired students.

The provision of the services is expensive but the cancellation of the sign language classes has given the budget an extra $600, so costs will be met from the original $3000.

The exercise of organizing the services was very time consuming and the establishment of a consultancy position is warranted to handle such organizations, as well as the attraction of more hearing impaired students. Future activities related to this category of students may be the leasing of a public telephone with amplification provision, consideration of setting up a deaf education unit on campus which could attract students Australia wide and the ongoing training of sign interpreters through the Summer Session courses.

Overall, I believe the services to be beneficial and should be continued in the future.

"THE BAKHOR FOLK DANCE ENSEMBLE"

The Australia-USSR Society (Wollongong Branch) presents The “Bakhor” Folk Dance Ensemble, from Uzbekistan, USSR, at Wollongong Town Hall on Tuesday, 25th September at 8.00 p.m.

The Bakhor (the word means Spring) Folk Group have performed in many countries, including USA, Japan and Europe, and have won many international awards. The character of the ancient Uzbek choreography is still retained in the dances, but the general presentation, and much of the music, is modern. Uzbekistan is a Soviet Central Asian Republic of some 17 million people. It embraces the ancient cities of Samarkand, Bokhara, Khiva and Tashkent - along the Great Silk Route of the Middle Ages. The different dances achieve a nice blend of the ancient and the modern. Each dance is introduced in English.

Tickets from Town Hall Booking Office, Palings and Wilson's Record Bar. Adults $8.00, Children $3.00, Pensioners, Unemployed and Students $5, Groups of 6 or more $6.50.

SCHOOL OF CREATIVE ARTS PUBLIC LECTURE SERIES

All lectures in the Music Centre are open to the public and staff and students of the University - not least to those of the School of Creative Arts. Admission is free. There are Tuesday and Thursday early afternoon lectures. (See list below).

In the Tuesday series coming up shortly will be three audio/visual presentations given by John Eveleigh devoted to the life and work of England's foremost artist - Joseph Mallord William Turner, taking place on October 2nd, 9th and 16th beginning at 2.30 p.m.

A major retrospective exhibition of works by J.M.W. Turner was mounted in Paris at the Grand Palais, held earlier this year - seen by a million visitors - to enormous critical acclaim.

John Eveleigh, Visiting Senior Lecturer in the Visual Arts Strand of the School of Creative Arts, is a practising artist and was prior to last April founder Arts Director and Head of the New Metropole Arts Centre in Kent, England. The Centre's President was until his death last year, Kenneth Clark. Among its advisers are artists, writers, poets, musicians - several of international repute including Henry Moore and Sidney Nolan.

The New Metropole Arts Centre had 1400 enrolled students studying a wide range of art and craft subjects and it promotes changing exhibitions (many exhibitions being drawn from overseas including exhibitions of Australian art); chamber and jazz concerts; piano recitals, films; readings and lectures by living poets and writers.

Of the many hundreds of events and exhibitions that were mounted during John Eveleigh's period as art director and head of Centre were two large exhibitions of Turner Watercolours in 1966 and 1971. In choosing exhibits for these John Eveleigh examined the entire Turner bequest of watercolours and drawings (20,000 in all) housed at the British Museum.

In this audio/visual presentation John Eveleigh will combine the spoken work, excerpts from 18C and 19C musical compositions which have a close affinity with Turner's Romantic vision as well as showing many slides corresponding to the text. John Eveleigh will give a broad cultural and historical context to the life of Turner born in 1775 and dying in the mid 19C and attempt to demonstrate Turner's enormous achievement - not least his total liberation of colour in painting. This year a Turner oil seascape - formerly in the collection of Kenneth Clark - at auction realised the record sum of 7½ million pounds sterling - or 11½ million Australian dollars.
