MULTICULTURAL STUDIES ADVANCING

Mr. Michael Morrissey, the Acting Director of the Centre for Multicultural Studies, has announced a major flood of consultancies in the first quarter of 1985. After a quiet beginning the Centre appears to have found acceptance amongst a wide range of Government agencies.

Funding from outside sources in the past is shown in the table below:

The Centre's clients include the Federal Departments of Immigration and Ethnic Affairs; Education and Youth Affairs; Employment and Industrial Relations; Social Security and the Human Rights Commission; The NSW Departments of Youth and Community Services; Health Commission; and Technical and Further Education: the Social Welfare Research Centre at the University of NSW; and TAFE National Centre in Adelaide.

The grants that have boosted activity in 1985 are:

* $56,000 from the Department of Immigration and Ethnic Affairs for a national study of language learning needs of work force entrants.
* $15,000 from the same department for a social network study of Blacktown and Campbelltown.
* $26,000 from TAFE to produce curriculum materials for social literacy courses for non-English speakers. This material will be written and tested here in Wollongong.
* $5,000 from the NSW Health Commission for a pilot project developing outreach techniques for use with people of non-English speaking backgrounds who have disabled children.

The Centre has been a job spinner in bad times. It created six short term jobs in 1984, and in 1985 it will generate approximately twenty short term jobs for interpreters.

SENIOR CITIZENS ENJOY THEIR DAY

The third Senior Citizens day at the University broke all previous attendance records as can be seen in the table below:

Attendance is a reflection of avid interest amongst our senior citizens in the University and the intellectual pursuits that it offers. Fifty one of the senior citizens have volunteered to join the Friends of the University and help in the Friends activities in 1985 and beyond.

JOHN BAILY RETROSPECTIVE

On Saturday 23 March the John Baily Retrospective was officially opened by the Vice-Chancellor, Prof. Ken McKinnon.

The School of Creative Arts staff is delighted about the retrospective exhibition of one of Australia's most enriching talents in the Visual Arts field. These talents embrace that of a prolific and highly talented Australian Landscape Painter; Principal of Sydney College of the Arts; adviser to Government, major universities, museums and art galleries on purchase of contemporary art; former Director of a major public gallery and art critic and journalist.

"The School of Creative Arts is privileged to highlight through its Gallery space the singular talent of John Baily the Artist. His works in this exhibition were executed over the last three and a half decades," said John Eveleigh.

"The catalogue to the exhibition makes for powerful and compulsive reading," he said. "John Baily writes of the individual's right to chose his own path rather than being the flotsam and jetsam of continuous and changing art fashions."

Open to the Public:
Monday March 25th to Sunday April 14th, 1985.
Monday to Friday - 10.00 a.m. to 1.00 p.m. and
2.00 p.m. to 4.00 p.m.
Saturday and Sunday - 2.30 p.m. to 5.00 p.m.

BROWN BLASTS NUCLEAR APOLOGISTS

Professor Duncan Brown of the University of Wollongong's Department of Biology has questioned the "soothing" findings of R.P. Turco et al. who believes that the effects of nuclear war will not be all that bad.

His attack was carried in "Nature" December 1984 edition and is reprinted below with due acknowledgement and thanks to "Nature".

"-Turco et al.1 have performed a valuable service by bringing to public and political attention the probability that, in addition to the "known" effects of blast and radiation, large-scale nuclear war will cause severe climatic disturbance which could increase the number of fatalities. Expressed in those simple and general terms, their claim is unassailable but, without supporting argument, it would attract neither scientific nor political interest nor would it be intellectually satisfying to the authors.

Because there was detailed supporting argument, criticism of their assumptions and model was inevitable. Predictably there has been a rapid succession of publications describing alternative analyses of the likely climatic consequences of global nuclear war, no doubt motivated in part by an understandable academic desire to arrive at the correct conclusion and by some of the other attractions of publishing in the vanguard of a topic that is attracting wide public interest. I should emphasize that this motivation is academic rather than scientific since the proponents of the various models have less chance of testing them experimentally than proponents of some of the more esoteric theories of cosmology.

Of the articles I have seen, that one that alarms me most is that of Teller2. It is well argued, as one would expect, and apparently well supported factually. It is soothing in a way that the arguments from supporters of the nuclear industry often are. ("When the biological recovery formula is applied, a dose rate as high as 250 rem from worldwide fallout is built up at a rate so slow that it would not produce significant casualties", I do not wish to seem ungrateful, but this information does not make nuclear war any more appealing.)

In his introduction, Teller says: "Scientific knowledge of the after-effects of a nuclear war...is of great importance in making political decisions". In his conclusion: "Therefore there is every reason to undertake the difficult task of arriving at more realistic predictions. Greater amounts of money, carefully spent on atmospheric modelling and experiments, would accelerate resolution of the basic questions regarding nuclear winter."

This, of course, is the substance of a cost-benefit analysis of nuclear war. With appropriate correction for distribution of bombs, the relation between mass of bombs exploded and the number of resulting deaths presumably resembles the Beer-Lambert spectrophotometric relation with a linear component for few bombs and a flattening of the curve for many bombs. If the "political decisions" of which Teller writes (I assume he means whether or not to bomb the Soviet Union) were to make any military sense, then the number of bombs used would have to be small enough to ensure that they were on the linear part of the death curve. Notwithstanding Teller's point about accurate low-yield missiles, that possibility seems very remote. Moreover, the correspondence about nuclear winter is specifically based on many bombs.

If it could be demonstrated that the predictions of a nuclear winter are exaggerated, how would that knowledge be used? Would one side bomb the other forthwith, secure in the knowledge that their few survivors would not be unduly cold, at least in summer? Or conversely, if the prediction is not exaggerated, does that mean that each side should stockpile food, as Teller suggests, so that the survivors can at least have some cold, albeit radioactive, porridge? If, in more comprehensive terms, the additional research for which Teller calls should conclude that a global war would not kill everyone, but merely 90 per cent of the world's population, would that make the war acceptable? The fine details of the ostensibly rational discussion about nuclear winter are fast making that discussion the penultimate insanity.

60% LIMIT ON MALE TEACHER PROMOTIONS

"A 60% limit on promotions of male teachers will be imposed from 1st January, 1986, according to a NSW Education Department document not yet published outside the Department," said Dr. G. Moens on 19 March, 1985. Dr. Moens was giving a guest lecture in Dr. de Lacey's third-year Education for B.A. class, on discrimination and the law. According to the document, a quota of 40% of women in promotions positions will be reserved in schools as an implementation of an "Affirmative-Action" plan. This means said Dr. Moens "that merit will be replaced by sex in many cases as a criterion for promotion, and that a number of meritorious males will be passed over who have qualified for, and expect, promotions, if the policy is implemented."

"To improve the representation of women teachers in promotions positions an Affirmative Action Program will be introduced, over a five year period. This program will commence in the 1986 school year by first offering 40% of vacant promotions positions in each region to eligible women applicants at each promotional level for Primary and Secondary. By first offering these vacancies in each region the inequitable distribution of promotional vacancies throughout regions will be improved. The appointments and the proportion of positions offered to eligible women applicants in each region as part of this program will be monitored and reviewed annually. Positions offered but not filled will be subsequently offered using existing procedures, i.e. through seniority."

AVCC TO PRODUCE NEWSLETTER

The Australian Vice-Chancellors’ Committee has appointed Jane Ford, “The Australian” correspondent in Canberra, to produce a 6 monthly newsletter to be called “University Research”. It will be used to push the research cause amongst legislators and decision makers in Australia.

It is planned for each issue to contain the following sections:

- An issues item. This will take the form of an article, probably by a Vice-Chancellor, but will in effect be an editorial giving the AVCC an opportunity to comment on issues relating to university research.
- Items on research. This section will highlight actual research of a special nature which has been undertaken or is ongoing in universities. It is envisaged that the research included in this section will be that of a marketable nature and not necessarily current. University Research will not be the place to break news.
- Very big research contracts. It is envisaged that in this section any big research contracts which universities have been able to negotiate, principally with industry, will receive special mention.
- Comments on current reports. Under this section the opportunity will be taken to comment on how the AVCC and universities will react to matters raised in reports on research which appear from time to time and which have implications for the universities.
- Comments on new initiatives. The new initiatives would include those by Government, industry, CSIRO, etc. where they have relevance to the universities. Matters which would be discussed would include such things as the proposed 150 per cent tax incentives scheme, teaching companies, key centres for teaching and research, etc.

It is hoped that Jane Ford will visit Wollongong soon to discuss developments at the University.

FORMATION OF THE ILLAWARRA BRANCH OF SANA (Scientists Against Nuclear Arms)

On Wednesday evening, March 20th, 1985, following a talk by Professor W.A. Runciman (Research School of Physical Sciences, ANU) entitled “Nuclear War, Nuclear Winter, Australia” the audience was invited to participate in the formation of the Illawarra Branch of Scientists Against Nuclear Arms (SANA). This particular time was chosen to coincide with Professor Runciman’s visit since it is the Foundation President of the ACT Branch of S.A.N.A. Professor Runciman said that “The primary aim of the Association is to halt and reverse the arms-race, particularly in nuclear, biological and chemical weapons, and to work for the general promotion of world peace. It provides a forum for the scientific discussion of the peaceful uses of nuclear, biological and chemical technology, where relevant to its primary aim, it is apolitical”.

For the purpose of the Association, the word “Scientists” in its title is taken to mean anyone in working or studying in the physical, natural or social sciences, including engineers and technologists. An Associate Membership is also available for those without the above qualifications.

The third category of Membership is that of Student.

At the inaugural meeting of the local group, an Interim Steering Committee was elected. The Office-Bearers are Professor P. Fisher (Interim President), Ms. D.G. Jones and Dr. R. Payling (Interim Co-Secretaries), and Dr. A.J. Hulbert (Interim Treasurer). For further information regarding the aims and membership of the Association contact Professor Fisher, Department of Physics, University of Wollongong (042) 270517. The next meeting of the Illawarra Branch of SANA will be held at 7.30 p.m. on 15th April in the Physics Lecture Theatre in the Science Building at the University of Wollongong (Room 118, Building 18).

THEATRE SOUTH PRESENTS "AND NOW WE ANCHOR IN TWOFOLD BAY"

This new play by Katherine Thomson premiered in Eden on 22 March.

"Five years ago", said Des Davis, "we at Theatre South decided that we wanted to do plays about the communities that make up our region.

Eden is one such community - with an exciting past, a lively present, and many, many interesting people with stories to tell.

In January of this year Katherine Thomson came to Eden and began researching the play. In February she was joined by actors and other members of the company. Out of the stories told to Katherine, out of the memories and lives of Eden and its people, Katherine and the company have created "And Tonight We Anchor in Twofold Bay".

Theatre South proudly offers it to the people of the South Coast. Come and see it when we play in or near your town.

Eden provided the inspiration, but this play is for everyone who's ever lived in a small town, and everyone who's loved the sea."

THE YOUTH ORGANISATION WHICH CELEBRATES INTERNATIONAL YOUTH YEAR EVERY YEAR

Dear friends and associates of the University of Wollongong.

As most people must now be aware the United Nations has declared the year 1985 as "the year of Youth". What this means is that during 1985 many organisations world wide will be working towards highlighting the expectations as well as attempting to find answers to the special problems that can affect every young person in today's social environments. Though this is a grand gesture by this body, these expectations and problems that can face youth are not confined either to this year or generation. With these thoughts in mind the organisation "Youth for Understanding" sets out to help deal with these issues.

This organisation was set up in 1951 in the USA to help deal with many of the misconceptions which a number of the people of this country harboured concerning the youth of Germany. Many of these issues centered around such movements as the "Hitler Youth". From these origins it blossomed into a world wide movement now comprising some 80,000 high school students coming from and going to 15 countries, including much of Europe, Japan, Canada, U.S.A., U.K., and South America. The youth of Australia can now, as exchange students, visit one of these countries for up to 12 months. The program also enables Australians to become a host family for a student from anyone of these countries also for up to one year.

The Youth for Understanding organisation will be bringing to the Illawarra in 1986 some 30 students from these countries. Therefore the goal is set, to find within the Illawarra, host families for this number for 1986.

To be a host family one does not need to be a millionaire. What it does mean is that for the year 1986 you as a family would be willing to host a young person as a member of your family. This is not something that everyone is able to do. This being the case, it is important that those able to do so make themselves available. This can be seen as a major method of helping to ensure peace among the nations of the world. By offering a student from another country a place within your family, both they and you can come to understand each other a little better.
