LITERACY GRANT - $10,000

The Centre for Literacy, Language and Cognition has been awarded $10,000 from the NSW Department of Education to complete a pilot evaluation of the “Early Literacy in Childhood” program. This program, which is part of a $1.6 million dollar grant from the Federal government, is an in-service teacher education program which aims to make teachers aware of recent developments in literacy education especially in the early stages. The Centre has also been invited to develop a proposal for evaluating the impact of the program in 1986 and 1987.

ADMINISTRATION BUILDING AND RING ROAD WORK BEGINS

by Kevin Turnbull, Senior Assistant Secretary, Buildings and Grounds

The contracts have been awarded for the construction of both the proposed new Administration Building located on the existing hockey field to the south side of the Gymnasium and the Ring Road (northern link) from the Gymnasium across the rugby field to the Sports Association and then to join up with the existing road north of the tennis courts.

Work will commence on site with effect from November 4, 1985 and will continue for about 13 months for the Administration Building and 3 months for the Ring Road.

The work for the Ring Road contract will also include earthworks for the relocation of the rugby field and running tracks as well as the hockey field to the north side of the new road. The parking area on the northern side of the Social Sciences building will be demolished once the Ring Road link is completed and landscaped works in this area are ready to commence.

The existing road on the eastern side of the Gymnasium will be blocked in the week commencing November 4, 1985 and traffic will be diverted through the existing car park on the eastern side of this road.

The diagram on page 8 shows the layout of these two major capital works projects.

EEO AND PHYSICAL IMPAIRMENT

A seminar on employment issues and physical impairment was held on October 25, led by Cathy Cole, Senior Advisor on the Physically Impaired with the office of the Director of Equal Opportunity in Public Employment.

Discussion covered the wide range of disabilities, some visible, and some “hidden” which affect employment opportunities for the physically impaired.

Access problems, for example, form an enormous barrier to attending interviews or work (or university), as was highlighted by the fact that no room with wheelchair access was available on campus for the seminar.

Networks of the physically disabled have been set up or extended through Cathy Cole and the office of Equal Employment, (two hundred in the RSI group alone), to give support, highlight specific groups’ needs and strategies for improvement.

Staff on campus are encouraged to contact Kathy Rozmets, the newly appointed Equal Employment Opportunity Co-ordinator for Wollongong University, to tap into these developments, or simply to suggest strategies for improvement at the University.

Initially, a career development workshop for disabled staff is being offered in December and anyone interested may request more details from Kathy Rozmets, EEO Unit, Room 123, Administration Building, ext. 3917.

Book of the Week

“AT MY OWN PACE”

by Ian Pendlebury and John Hay

Foreword by Caroline Jones

In 1981 on the ABC morning radio program “City Extra”, Caroline Jones broadcast an interview with Ian Pendlebury. Ian had contacted the program saying that he would like to speak about his experience of life as a cerebral palsied man. He said he wanted to make people understand that a physical handicap does not deprive you of your feelings. He wanted everyone to know that he was a capable person longing for acceptance as an ordinary man.

In her foreword to this book Caroline writes ‘he gave us an extraordinary half-hour of radio. Certainly it was difficult to understand every word, but it was possible.

The brightest insight for me was that people with physical disability are only handicapped if the able-bodied make them so’.

Ian Pendlebury’s story shows quite clearly that there are still large sectors of the public that need educating. For him it has been a constant fight, through his childhood and even his adulthood, to attain recognition of his normal intelligence, his feelings and his rights. Ian was not satisfied with the world that was provided for him by the Spastic Society, a world which was safe and supportive, kind and understanding, but above all restrictive. In this highly personal and frank account Ian describes the constant conflict between his aspiration to be part of the normal world and the reality of his own condition, and how he has come to terms with it. Today Ian lives in the ‘normal’ world. He has taken on the responsibilities of living alone, paying a mortgage, working successfully in the normal work environment, having a girlfriend, and ensuring that his neighbours and the people he meets treat him with the courtesy and respect that able-bodied people expect for themselves.

There is no bitterness in this book. Ian comes through as a warm interesting and witty person, a person about whom you want to know more — not because he is disabled, but because he is Ian, and very funny at that.

KENSINGTON ORGANIZES ITS GRADUATE AFFAIRS

(The following is an extract from “Uniken”, October 11, 1985).

The University has for some time been reassessing its policies, strategies and programs in the area of graduate affairs. An initiative has now been taken with the establishment of a new administration section to serve as a focus for all graduate affairs activities whether initiated and conducted by the University, faculties and schools, the Alumni Association or individual graduates.

The new office is within the area of responsibility of Pro-Vice-Chancellor Professor Malcolm Chaikin. He says the new office’s major priority is to develop a positive, ongoing and reciprocal relationship between the University and its graduates to generate support for, and an understanding of, the University so that graduates will maintain a continuing interest in UNSW’s welfare and a continuing sense of being an important part of its community.

The new office replaces the Alumni and Ceremonials Office which has been disestablished, although the ceremonial function still remains part of the Registrar’s Department. The office will be part of a Development Unit which also comprises Special Projects and a Foundation and Fund-raising Office, to be established later. An Executive Officer (Graduate Affairs) has already been appointed and Mr Peter Andersen, who was Graduate Affairs Officer at the University of Adelaide, took up this appointment on October 21.

Research News

BILATERAL SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY AGREEMENTS

A recent issue of Campus News contained a report on the bilateral agreements which the Australian government supports. As mentioned in that report, the currently specified areas of priority are likely to be replaced by a general statement of activities which may be supported.

In the meantime, the Department of Science in its publication Science and Technology Statement, 1985 advises as follows:

"The Department of Science operates bilateral science and technology agreements with the USA (1968), India (1975), the Federal Republic of Germany (FRG) (1976), Japan (1980), China (1980) and Mexico (1981). Activities under the agreements have included short term research visits, seminars, workshops, and exchanges of policy delegations. The operation of the Agreement with the USSR is being reviewed following the change in policy by the new Government.

"Applications under each of the agreements are sought from the research community. Additionally proposals in specific fields are developed in collaboration with the partner country following identification of priority areas. Program selection is on the basis of scientific or technological merit together with the likely contribution of proposals to the economic development of Australia and the other country concerned. Generally the agreements are not intended as a primary source of research funds. It is expected that the collaborating institutions provide the bulk of the necessary funding while the agreements provide support for airfares, living allowances and the running of seminars and workshops."

Below is a breakdown of projected expenditure for 1985/86 using the existing categories:

It is also anticipated that $50,000 will be available under the U.K. Royal Society Exchange Scheme, and that $38,000 will be available for Biology in relation to Non Agreement Countries. Further, $18,730 has been allocated "Not Assigned to a Specific Country".

In all, almost $600,000 has been allocated for 1985/86.

Applications for activities between January–June 1987 will close on 1 April, 1986. A copy of the existing guidelines may be had from Trevor Smith (ext 3079) or Tom Moore (ext 3386).

CENTRE FOR TEACHING DEVELOPMENT

Speaker: Professor John Furedy
Topic: Perils of the Professor in student supervision and evaluation: unsound charges of discrimination
Date: Thursday, November 14, 1985
Place: Social Sciences Building - Room G30 (Geography Seminar Room)
Time: 12.30 pm

Professor Furedy, who is an Australian, obtained his PhD in Psychology from the University of Sydney. After two years at Indiana University he moved to Toronto. His major research field is psychophysiology. There is a world-wide trend towards student initiated litigation against academics and universities. Professor Furedy’s seminar should interest not only academics but also administrators.

Because of the nature of the academic work involved in supervised research, students do not get equal treatment from the faculty, but are properly treated according to academic performance. This sort of evaluation is a vital province of the faculty, and is potentially compromised when false charges of discrimination are laid.

A case of such false discrimination charges is presented, and the roles of the supervisor, departments and University are discussed.
