WHAT'S IN A NAME? — CENTRE FOR TRANSPORT POLICY ANALYSIS — YEAR 2

Not everybody gets the name of the Centre right — it is sometimes Transport Studies, or Policy, or Policy Studies or simply Transport; and one of the more exotic attempts was the 'Centre des Transp. Patients Analicis University of Wallongona...'

It is certain, though, that into the second year of operation, the Centre is now widely recognised as a focus of rigorous, analytical and independent research into transport policy and planning problems.

By the end of 1987 the Centre's gross income for completed or committed projects will have reached almost $400,000 and is likely to reach a half-million dollars early in 1988.

But as gratifying as this financial position is, it is especially important that the Centre be recognised for the quality and impartiality of its research and its judgements.

So far the Centre has completed major projects for the Royal Commission into grain, storage, handling and transport, for the Australian Federal Government's Inter-State Commission, the Tasmanian and NSW state governments, for major minerals industry associations and interests, for shipping companies, both Australian and foreign-owned, for an important container handling port and for state government agencies.

For the most part these projects have had important policy implications and in a number of cases have been used directly in high-level policy discussions. In some cases — as in the project related to the development of major new container facilities and a port dredging Program — the research has been fundamental to investment decision-making.

Although most research projects have a limited time frame, the Centre is now also involved in longer-term, in-depth research. Recently, the Centre was awarded a grant of almost $300,000 from the Australian Special Rural Research Fund for a major three-year study of port costs and port pricing policies for Australia's rural exports. The Centre also expects to continue work into Australian maritime policy in a project supporting a post-doctoral fellow and a Senior Research Associate at Monash University.

New appointments to staff in 1987/1988 will extend the Centre's capacity, as will a third, high-capability computer, and a new, much-renovated off-campus 'home' and a professional working environment should make the Centre's third year both exciting and productive.

1987 SIR RICHARD KIRBY LECTURE

After the lecture, Lady Kirby presents the Hilda Kirby Prize to Daryl Kilby. Looking on is Dr Ray Markey

Changing patterns in industrial relations, wage determination in the recent past and how these suggested future patterns, were among the themes discussed by Mr Bill Kelty when he delivered the 1987 Sir Richard Kirby lecture in the Pentagon on October 12. He emphasised the wider concerns, beyond pay movements, of unions and the need for a greater emphasis on training and incentives to extend work skills.

A transcript of the lecture will be available shortly (at a low price) from Dr Ray Markey or Di Kelly in the Department of Economics.

Two prizes were presented during the evening. Lady Kirby presented the Hilda Kirby Prize for the best essay from the Session 1 subject, Econ140/240 Wage Determination in Australia. The winner was Daryl Kilby, a part-time BCom student.

Bill Kelty presented Bronwen Turner, a second year part-time BA student with the Industrial Relations Society of NSW Prize. Bronwen gained the highest total marks in 1986 in the two introductory industrial relations subjects, Econ 140/240, Wage Determination in Australia, and Econ 142/242, Trade Unions Employers and Government.

SELF EDUCATION FOR CONTROL OF PAIN

Have you ever suffered from back pain, RSI, chronic headaches or any other form of ache or muscular tension?

You can learn to control them simply through awareness of your body. The Feldenkrais technique is recognised by the medical community for its remarkable success in benefiting everyone from stroke victims to athletes.

Feldenkrais is the name of the developer of the exercise method, who, 25 years ago, avoided surgery on a damaged knee by working out how to use her joint correctly. Long-term sufferers have gained relief after as little as an hour of therapy.

A weekend workshop will be held in the Union on November 7 and 8 to teach the basics of the Feldenkrais technique. The $75 you invest will save you money, time and pain in future.

A NEW SCHOOL FOR GALOA, FROM WOLLONGONG

Galoa (pron. Naloa) is one of the smaller and more northerly of the Fiji islands. The population of 150 has no school; so they are pitching in with a similarly placed nearby island to start one. Having heard about the preschool at Bourke, NSW, the people have asked Dr de Lacey, director of the preschool program, and his team to help them start a school. One of the team, Dr Allen Barlow of Nepean CAE, has just returned from a preliminary visit, and reports that, extraneous circumstances permitting, this idyllic isle will have its school when the research team completes arrangements for setting it up. The team will monitor progress among the children and the community over the next few years, as well as advising on the development of the school program.

LANGUAGE STAFF MEMBER ONLY
AUSTRALIAN ACADEMIC INVITED TO INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE

A member of the Languages Department, Dr Gary Ianziti, is one of the 24 featured speakers in an international conference to be held in Messina, Italy, towards the end of this month. Speakers are being invited on an all-expenses-paid basis to participate in an important week-long conference on the writing of history during the Renaissance period. The conference is organised by the Association for the Latin Middle Ages and Humanism, with funds provided by local Speakers are drawn from many European countries, as well as from North America and the United Kingdom. Dr Ianziti is the only speaker from Australia. He will be addressing the conference on History-Writing in 15th century Milan, which is the subject of his book, scheduled to appear early next year with the Clarendon Press, Oxford University.

Dr Ianziti says that the Messina conference might well be the first in a number of overseas speaking engagements connected with the appearance of his book. Renaissance culture and literature had usually been treated from a Florentine perspective. His would be one of the first books to deal at length with a major aspect of the Renaissance from a different point of view, that of Sforza Milan in the 15th century. The Sforzas had been major, if unrecognised, rivals of the Florentine Medici in films of artistic and literary patronage.

Dr Ianziti is confident that his book will create considerable interest overseas. Negotiations are already under way for a translation into Italian. As for the Australian front, Dr Ianziti is resigned to the fact that there is likely to be little interest in the topic. He adds, however, that it is important for Australia's national image overseas that the country by perceived as capable of producing high-level scholarship in humanist disciplines, as well as in other areas.

ELIZABETH JOLLEY – DISTINGUISHED VISITOR

The Department of English has been privileged to have a visit from the distinguished Australian novelist, Elizabeth Jolley. Author of a substantial number of novels and short story collections, Mrs Jolley won this year's Miles Franklin award for her novel The Well. She spoke to English and Creative Writing students and read extracts both from The Well and from her forthcoming novel, The Sugar Mother. She also talked wittily and entertainingly, in response to student questions, about her published work and her methods of writing.

CAREERS AND APPOINTMENTS SERVICE

The Careers and Appointments Service being established on campus is at present in Building 29. It will move in a few weeks to the new premises in the Union Building – upstairs with the professional services.

Patricia Webster, the Careers and Appointments Officer, is available for careers counselling all day Wednesday and Thursday afternoon – by appointment.

Patricia is making contact with, and visiting, staff at the University to familiarise them with the role of the service and also of course to learn about the University itself. She has also begun to talk to employers, to inform them of her presence on campus.

She would welcome staff members whom she has not yet met, who care to drop in and introduce themselves.

THE CO-EDUCATION/SINGLE SEX DEBATE: PERSPECTIVE ON SPORT, HEALTH AND P.E.

Saturday October 31 from 9.30 am to 4.30 pm.
Venue: Pentagon lecture theatre No. 2 (building 20).

The conference has been organised to highlight the issues surrounding the topic of co-education and single-sex schooling in New South Wales.

Dr Noeline Kyle, Dr Jennifer Jones and Ms Jan Black of the School of Behaviour and Cultural Studies in Education have been researching such issues in 1986 and 1987. Their focus has been on secondary schools in the Illawarra and the impact of recent changes from single-sex schooling to co-education in the state, private and Catholic sector.

Findings from this research show that fundamental issues need to be addressed when such changes to co-education are considered. These fundamental issues concern both the education of girls and boys although the negative impact on girls' schooling can be judged to be more obvious in the short term.

The conference will focus on the specific issues surrounding health, sport and PE. Most research does show that girls, self esteem would be considerably enhanced if their perceptions of their physical ability and their body image are improved. It is argued that increased awareness among girls of their own health issues, participation in sport of all kinds and PE can go a long way to introducing such positive images for young women.

REUNION IN HONG KONG

On their recent Austrade visit to Hong Kong, Professor Brian Smith, Dean of Engineering, Dr Grahame Morris, Lecturer, Department of Mathematics; and Mrs Elisabeth Hilton, Administrative Officer, Planning and Marketing, were guests of honour at a reunion dinner on September 9 with ex-Wollongong graduates living in Hong Kong. Eight graduates attended. They were Simon Tsui – BE in Civil Engineering; Rita Chan, Kai Sun Law, Alec Lee and Teresa Ng – BE in Computer Engineering; Sing Pun Lo – BMath; Michael Chue and Peter Liu – BMath/BE in Electrical Engineering. Richard Leung – BE in Electrical Engineering, although not able to be present due to work commitments outside of Hong Kong, had delegated arrangements for the reunion to the other graduates.

Professor Smith was impressed by the transformation of their hosts from callow students to responsible and enthusiastic members of the workforce. Dr Morris also enjoyed the company and the superb meal, although he did admit that only one of the guests of honour ate the 'chook's foot' and each had extreme difficulty with the 'pig's intestine'. Mrs Hilton summed up for all three when she said it was one of the highlights of their trip and that their hosts were extremely hospitable and pleased to see them to catch up on news from Wollongong.

All hosts volunteered to act as ambassadors for Wollongong, so that any prospective students may contact them to obtain first-hand information on the University, its courses and the area.
Sir!

I am starting to wonder if certain people on campus have nothing better to do than whinge about new courses and initiatives offered at the University. I am referring to the critics of Dr Marengo’s article ‘A New Era for Politics’, in Campus News for September 9.

I feel it is about time that these people were told that some students from Wollongong University were actually contemplating going to Sydney or enrolling externally at Armidale University to study politics. I know because I was one of them. In fact, the day I was to send my application to Sydney Dr Marengo’s article appeared in Campus News.

The fact that Australian citizens were referred to as ‘him’ did not deter me from enrolling at Wollongong. I was happy to enrol in a course that interested me, knowing I would be receiving expert tuition equal to any other university, from men such as Dr Marengo and Professor Wolfers.

It amazed me to read that one of Dr Marengo’s critics feels he has learned that there are only men in our society now. One would think that by the time one reaches university level one would be conversant with the ‘birds and the bees’. Perhaps someone out there in the biology department might assist this man.

Well done Dr Marengo. The students need you.

Miss Pam Bradley
Post-graduate student

Sir!

Unfortunately Mr Donaldson has misinterpreted Dr Marengo.

I speak from a student’s viewpoint. Dr Marengo does not teach sexism or the kind of ideology that Donaldson presumably negates. If Mr Donaldson were a student and did aspire to secure the type of knowledge that the politics course requires his argument would be legitimized. Too bad, a cheap shot is not good enough. Start learning Mr Donaldson or I pity your students.

David Cleverley
SRC President

Sir!

Living in the Illawarra and working as a contract academic, I have found myself being employed from time to time by this University. At present I am teaching on campus for the Centre for the Study of Literacy (via Uniaidvice). I have always had an interest in improving wherever possible the service the Co-op Bookshop (via their agency on campus) provides to academics and students.

I have therefore decided to stand for election for one of the vacancies on the University Co-operative Bookshop Limited’s Board of Directors. It would seem the Illawarra has never been represented on the Board even though our Bookshop is part of the Co-op Bookshops’ network.

I am asking those Co-op shareholders at Wollongong University to vote for me in the current elections. If elected, I shall be seeking suggestions on how the Co-op Bookshop, and our agency in particular, can improve its service.

I believe the Co-op Bookshop can help bring influence on AGPS to improve distribution and this could be partly achieved through creative marketing via Co-op Bookshops. Such an arrangement will be to the mutual benefit of AGPS, Co-op Bookshops and consumers.

As a member of the NSW Ministerial Council on Cooperatives, I am committed to co-operatives as economic and social institutions and would value the opportunity to help run the University Co-operative Bookshop Limited.

Signed: Ron Witton, SRC President

Sir!

We note that the lecture/seminar on October 19 at the University by Mr Alan Carroll was on Strategic Political and Economical Issues for Management.

Mr Alan Carroll became well known to the Australian public through a famous Four Corners program on 3 July 1982 which exposed the efforts of a team he led, to achieve, through fair means or foul, the re-election of the government of Ratu Mara in Fiji. Details of the Four Corners’ program were simultaneously published in the National Times of July 4—10 1982. The reporting by Four Corners and by the National Times was confirmed as correct by a subsequent Royal Commission in Fiji. This Royal Commission was headed by a retired senior New Zealand judge, Justice White. Particular attention in the Royal Commission was focused on a report prepared by Mr Carroll and his team (Dr Jeffry Race and Mr Geoff Allen) which outlined a strategy for Ratu Mara’s government to retain power.

As Professor Ernst Utrecht, in his Fiji: Client State of Australia (Transnational Corporations Research Project, University of Sydney, 1984), writes:

... Sir John White ... reported in November 1983. He found that ‘repugnant strategies’ were contained in a report prepared before the election by a team headed by Australian business consultant, Alan Carroll, which was presented to Prime Minister Mara and others in the Alliance Party. The strategies found repugnant were to bribe the leader of one opposing political party, and to manipulate the criminal justice system to prevent the leader of another party from going forward as a candidate. These, said Justice White, were ‘completely unacceptable in any country where there is a right of free choice by the people to vote for the candidate for whom they wish to vote’., (p. 63)

Further details of this episode are available elsewhere in literature on recent Fijian politics. For example, Dr Brij Lal in his Politics in Fiji (Allen and Unwin, Sydney, 1986) states: The Carroll Report recommended strategies for winning the election that included, among others, utilising the existing cultural and religious divisions in the Indian community, buying off the FNP leader Butadroka, and accelerating pending prosecutions against WUF leader Gavidi to take him out of the running. (p. 101—102).

Arguably, Mr Carroll has prejudiced the social sciences in the South Pacific for a blatantly manipulative and undemocratic purpose. Perhaps we might expect the University also to sponsor someone who rejects the types of methods advocated in the Carroll Report and who argues instead for strategies that promote democratic and participatory politics.

Because of pressure on space further correspondence (and a good deal of other matter) has been held over. Editor.

25TH ANNIVERSARY DINNER

On Wednesday November 4 the Illawarra Branch of the Australian Federation of University Women—NSW are holding their 25th Anniversary Dinner at Gleniffer Brae, Keiraville.

Dr Rosalind Dubs, the Registrar at the Australian National University, Canberra is the guest speaker. Dr Dubs is a former student of SCEGGS Wollongong. It is especially pleasing to welcome her back to Wollongong for this special occasion.

All university women graduates and their friends are most welcome to attend. Tickets for the dinner ($25 each) can be obtained from either AFUW — NSW Illawarra, Treasurer, Mrs Joan Jennings; or Secretary, Mrs Jill Cook; or from either the Bookshop or from the National Bank, 2515, phone 671283 or Secretary, Mrs Jill Cook, 38 McMahon Street, Mt. Ousley 2519, phone 295690.
SAFETY POLICY

The policy of The University of Wollongong is to provide a safe working environment for its staff, students and visitors. The University thus encourages all members of the University complex to regard accident prevention and safe working as a collective and individual responsibility.

In order to implement this policy, the University supports the activities of the Occupational Health and Safety Committee in monitoring the safety environment and safety awareness and training at all levels of activity.

The University regards seriously its corporate responsibility under the various Occupational Health and Safety Statutes and will ensure that all members of the University staff understand clearly their individual responsibilities outlined in such legislation. In this regard, Heads of Departments, Schools and other academic and administrative units are responsible for day-by-day safety within their areas of responsibility. The Safety Officer is available to advise on specific matters or assist in implementing safety programs.

The University insists that all staff and students work within the various legal requirements with regard to safe working and the current, and future, safety rules devised to protect them in specific situations.

Personal habits and conduct on the campus should be such that they do not cause accidents or hazards which may endanger members of the University or other persons.

SUPERANNUATION ENQUIRIES

Staff wishing to make superannuation enquiries should contact Barbara Smith in the Salaries Office. Barbara is available Wednesday to Friday, 2 pm to 4 pm on ext 3914.

SUPERVISORS OF CASUAL STAFF

To assist supervisors of casual staff in monitoring the casual staff payments, the Salaries office generates a report each fortnight for departments showing those casuals whose authority has reached 75% of the commitment value. This report provides a number of useful details but most importantly highlights the amount which is still available for the casual employee.

The action(s) required by the Supervisor on receipt of the 'Casual Authorities 75% Expired Report' then is:

a) If there is no intention to extend the period of employment:
   Ensure that the casual employee does not work beyond those hours that have been committed. The report indicates the amount of money remaining for the employee.

b) If the department wishes to extend the period of employment:
   Submit a new authority for the desired extension and quote the order number of the previous authority;

c) If the employee will not be working for any further period and there are hours remaining on the authority:
   Send a written request to Mr Ted Ross, Budgets Officer, to cancel the authority. This will have the effect of releasing those funds for the department's use.

Any queries about the report can be directed to Bob Hogarth, ext 3930, daily between 2 pm and 4 pm.

HERE'S YOUR LAST CHANCE! – CLOSING ON FRIDAY

Are you interested in general staff training and development? Well, here is your chance to become involved.

It is expected that the committee will have representation from the various groupings of general staff on campus. These groupings have initially been identified as: Administrative and Clerical, Computing, Library, Professional, Research Assistant, Secretarial, Support (maintenance, security, cleaning, attendants, landscape, etc), and Technical.

Accordingly, nominations from people interested in representing staff from their grouping are being called for. WANTED - EXPERIENCED GHOSTBUSTERS FOR WOLLONGONG

Speaking at the annual general meeting of the Metal Trades Industry Association of Australia on Friday October 16 Professor Ron Johnston used allegory to get across his concern for industry in the Illawarra. Among his points were these observations.

While much progress has been made, the ghosts of the past still haunt Wollongong:
- the ghost of 20 years of bad industrial relations;
- the ghost of a polluted industrial city;
- the ghost of youth unemployment;
- the ghost of limited expectations;
- the ghost of Norman Gunston and Auntie Jack;
- the ghost of endless parochial disputes;
- the ghost that reliance on AIS and the mines would provide properly for all.

Some of the ghosts are laid.

But now is the time for a super ghost-busting effort, to project Wollongong and the Illawarra towards the 1990s as a renewed, dynamic economic region which has shed its past.

Wollongong's industry faces many problems:
- the effects of technology on these industries are primarily to increase productivity, reduce labour, and increase efficiency of use of the material (and hence reduce demand);
- the metal trades industry has been chronically dependent on the fortunes of the steelworks, and has followed its boom and bust cycle; all the signs are that there will be NO MORE BOOMS;
- the growth industries, and the knowledge, skills and entrepreneurial flair to drive them are, until recently, very scarce.

The solution for Wollongong industry is ESD:
- Efficiency in production and marketing of existing products;
- Specialisation in new products which cater to well-identified special markets;
- Diversification into areas of industrial production and new markets.

The strategy for the future of the metal trades industry in Wollongong involves four elements:
- elimination of the boom and bust cycle through working together with BHP to establish targets and strategies for the next five and ten years;
- develop customers outside the local region;
- develop new capabilities, eg., in computer aided design (CAD) and new fabricating techniques.

Given the fragmented nature of the industry this would require the formation of consortia or joint ventures for this purpose; the Illawarra Technology Centre can play a key role in these developments.

- diversifying into the new technology areas, particularly mechatronics.

Wollongong would not be the same without a metal trades industry. But there is no option. We either get a very different metal trades industry, which probably will be called something else, or we will have no industry at all.
