Graduation Day a celebration of our diverse community

THREE hundred students in the faculties of Arts, Commerce, Education, Informatics, Health and Behavioural Sciences, Informatics, and Science, received their degrees and diplomas from the Chancellor, the Hon. RM Hope at the graduation ceremony on October 12.

A record 18 doctorates were conferred, highlighting the success of the emphasis placed on developing postgraduate studies and research at this university in recent years.

The ceremony celebrated the achievements and contributions that are flowing from our diverse community.

A happy combination of circumstances gave the University the opportunity to recognise the contributions made to the University and the region by the Italian community.

Four prominent citizens who were former immigrants from Italy were nominated for awards this year.

It was decided to bring them together at the one ceremony, and, appropriately, to invite the Hon. Franca Arena, member of the NSW Legislative Council, and an ardent campaigner for ethnic groups in Australia, to deliver the Occasional address.

Mr and Mrs Efrem Bonacina received Fellowships for the active role they played in Wollongong to promote the interests of the Italian people and the work they have undertaken with the Friends of the University.

This is the first husband and wife team to be admitted as Fellows of the University.

eengineer and a patron of the arts, received an honorary degree of Doctor of Science.

He was honoured for the part he played in building up Transfield Limited which became a centre of employment and support for Italian migrants; for his role as a member of the Visiting Committee for the University’s Faculty of Engineering; and as a patron of the arts.

Ferdinando Lelli was awarded a Fellowship of the University for his commitment and achievements as a community leader, and for the positive role he played, as secretary of the Port Kembla Branch of the Federated Ironworkers Association, to improve the lot and protect the dignity of the individual.

Another former immigrant Bert Flugelman, an internationally-acclaimed artist and lecturer at the University’s School of Creative Arts, was awarded a Fellowship for his high artistic talents and efforts to pass on his knowledge and techniques to others.

In her address, Franca Arena praised the students for recognising that Australia needed to be a ‘clever country’.

‘We need to be an educated country,’ she said. ‘We need to continue to obtain and upgrade our skills, so that we can be better prepared for the challenges that the next century will bring.’

First woman Doctorate in Civil Engineering

WOLLONGONG University’s first woman Doctor of Civil and Mining Engineering graduated on October 12. Monica Bufill did her Masters degree at Imperial College, University of London before coming to the University of Wollongong.

She has an international reputation in civil engineering for her work on problems of urban flooding in Sydney, Melbourne and Canberra.

Her Ph.D. research provides a model for the design of civil engineering work to reduce the risk of urban flooding in Australia and across the world. Monica hopes her outstanding success as a civil engineer will encourage other women to join her in the field of engineering.

She is now on the lookout for a first class job with an Australian firm of consulting engineers.
Expansion of links with overseas universities

The University of Wollongong has formal links with 12 institutions in the United States of America and is finalising similar agreements with other institutions in the US, the United Kingdom and Europe.

Students who participate in the Student Exchange Agreements are exposed to some of the best teaching and research in the US, in such prestigious universities as the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, the University of Miami and the University of California system.

Students who have completed at least one year of study at the University of Wollongong are eligible to apply for exchange and all fields of study are catered for.

Study programs must be approved by the Sub Dean of the relevant Faculty at the University of Wollongong.

The Study Abroad option enables students to combine study and travel, and provides a unique opportunity to study without having to pay the normal tuition fees associated with studying as a private student in the US.

The students are responsible for their own airfares, accommodation and spending money.

Ina Grinbergs was one of 10 students from the University of Wollongong who spent Autumn Session, 1990 in the US at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

She graduated with a Bachelor of Arts this month.

All students have returned with glowing reports of their experiences and are keen to speak to other students who may be considering the exchange program.

More than 20 students will be participating in the US exchange program in January, 1991 but there are still vacancies in some programs.

The closing date for applications to begin the exchange in August, 1991 will be March 30, 1991.

Interested students should contact Sue or Trish in the International Office, ground floor, Administration Building for more details.
Kids are the stars of special book launch

A SPECIAL and different kind of book launch took place on October 18 at McDonald's, Figtree. The special guest was Dianne Bates, well-known children's writer (author of many books including Terri, Piggy Moors, Grandma Cadbury's Trucking Tales and Thirteen Going on Forty).

The book launch celebrated the publication of Feel the Warmth, and anthology of writing by 41 Illawarra school pupils and 20 student teachers from the Faculty of Education, University of Wollongong. During this collaborative project, the student teachers worked with the pupils, helping them in their writing at Berkeley Primary School, Fairy Meadow Demonstration School, St Joseph's, Bulli, St Therese's, West Wollongong and Warrawong Primary School.

The publication grew out of an international Literacy Year grant of $2000 from the Federal Government (Department of Employment, Education and Training). This grant was supplemented by an additional $1000 from the Equity in Education Research Program to extend the project into secondary schools.

During this collaborative project, the student teachers worked with the pupils, helping them in their writing at Berkeley Primary School, Fairy Meadow Demonstration School, St Joseph's, Bulli, St Therese's, West Wollongong and Warrawong Primary School.

A feature of the project is the writing included from children in primary schools in Lautoka, Fiji, where some University of Wollongong students enjoyed a practice teaching visit in June-July.

Since International Literacy Year focuses on International Co-operative against illiteracy, it is appropriate that this publication is shared across the Pacific.

The co-ordinators of the project are Mr Robert Colvin and Mr Pat Farrar.

Council and University in joint attack on vehicle access

WOLLONGONG City Council and the University of Wollongong are acting jointly to find satisfactory solutions to motor vehicle access to the University.

Residents will be asked to complete a survey form and return it to the Council in a pre-paid addressed envelope.

Even though the information sought is of a very general nature, residents are assured of complete confidentiality of their responses.

Further information may be obtained from Environmental Engineer, Wollongong City Council, Mr Carl Wulff, or Manager, Buildings & Grounds, University of Wollongong, Mr Kevin Turnbull.

Mathematics teachers at Informatics evening

THIRTY local mathematics teachers and careers advisers recently attended the annual presentation organised by the Faculty of Informatics.

The subject this year was 'Opportunities in Computing' presented by Professor Fergus O'Brien whose recent experience and wide background gave the talk considerable authority, which was shown by the interest of the teachers.

The evening was hosted by Associate Professor Martin Bunder and has become a valuable forum for closer links between local schools and the University.'

Graduate diplomas in mining, nursing and public health

REPORT from the University Council Meeting of October 12.

The Honourable Robert Marsden Hope, Foundation Chancellor of the University was awarded an honorary degree of the University in recognition of his long and outstanding leadership and service to the University and for his achievements in the community; and the award will be a Doctor of Laws (LLD) degree, (noting that a formal proposal for this degree will be presented for official endorsement at Council's December meeting). (see page three)

Other matters decided were:

• Council approved the introduction of Graduate Diplomas in Mining Management, Nursing and Public Health.

• Council approved a reorganisation of the Faculty of Education (from January 1, 1991) into a single organisation for general administrative purposes and the consequent dissolution of the two present Schools.

• The Department of Languages was renamed the Department of Modern Languages.

• The draft 1991 University Budget was approved.

• The 1991 Budgets and Fee Schedules for University Accommodation were approved.

• Council agreed that the Drama Hut would be dismantled and stored with a view to interested parties reassembling it at a later date for use as a production and teaching television studio.

• Council noted recent developments relating to campus access and parking, including categories likely to apply to the various categories of annual permits. Council authorised the Vice-Chancellor to implement changes to the University parking regulations.

PE lecturer Dr Paul Webb appointed as national touch vice-president

Dr PAUL WEBB, a senior lecturer in physical education at the University Wollongong, has been appointed vice-president of the Australian Touch Association.

Dr Webb has held a national position for many years now, starting in 1986 when he was appointed national coaching director.

From 1987 he has been national technical director, a position which is responsible for all the technical areas of the sport such as coaching, refereeing, juniors, women's, tournaments, masters and selectors.

'Even though I have been appointed to the national executive, I will still be involved in the technical areas of the sport and doing coaching courses and so on,' Dr Webb said.

The sport itself has gone through a tremendous growth period over the past few years and is now one of the biggest participant sports at school level in NSW and Queensland.

Dr Webb forecasts interesting times ahead when all these junior players reach senior level.

'It certainly will be a challenge to see whether all our resources can meet their needs,' he said.

Dr Webb was also one of the founding members of the successful Wollongong University Touch Club and is the club's vice-president.

In its first season, Wollongong University fielded eight teams in the Wollongong Touch Association with three of the sides making grand finals.

Two of the mixed teams won premierships in their divisions.
Long Gallery features three visual arts exhibitions

IN THE next two months the Long Gallery features three exhibitions of works by School of Creative Arts Postgraduates and Undergraduates, working in the field of the Visual Arts.

The first includes Master Creative Arts Postgraduates Siobhan O’Gorman, who is exhibiting paintings, and Susan Jorgensen (ceramics), and Doctoral Creative Arts Postgraduates George Hangay (sculpture) and John Storey, (photographs).

The exhibition is open to the public until November 11, Mondays to Fridays, 9.30am-12.30pm and 1.30-4pm and Sundays 1.30-3pm.

In the second exhibition Bachelor of Creative Arts Undergraduates will be exhibiting work to be previewed on Friday November 1, 6, from 7-9 pm.

This exhibition will be opened by Head of School, Professor Barry Conyngham at 7.30 pm.

The exhibition is open to the public from November 18 to December 2, Mondays to Fridays 9.30am-12.30pm and 1.30-4.30pm and Sundays 1.30-4pm.

The final exhibition is Paul Counsel’s doctoral submission comprising an exhibition and thesis.

Called Genocide: A ceramic representation of the impact of colonisation on the Australian Aboriginals, the submission will be previewed on Friday December 7, 7-8.30 pm.

It will be open to the public from December 9 to 16, 9.30am-12.30pm and 1.30-4.00pm.

Janet Mansfield, Editor, Ceramics: Art and Perception, will open the exhibition.

Keith Hempton lecturer in charge of Conservatorium

THE UNIVERSITY of Wollongong recently appointed Keith Hempton (B.A. Hons.) as lecturer in charge of the Conservatorium.

Mr Hempton will promote the image of the Conservatorium in the community with frequent performances by its talented staff and members.

His work will be divided evenly between the Conservatorium and the School of Creative Arts, and it was a fascination with the concept of fusing the two roles that drew him to the position initially.

Mr Hempton is looking forward to working with the progressive team at Creative Arts. He has long known and respected the musical talents of the School’s head, Professor Barry Conyngham.

Keith’s unassuming academic title — B.A. Hons. — belies a distinguished musical career. Having trained in London, he has sung at such illustrious venues as the Glyndebourne Opera House and the Royal Albert Hall.

Until 1986, he was a principle with the various State and Australian Opera Companies, when he joined the prestigious ‘Song Company’.

Since then he has toured internationally performing in the Philippines, Thailand, Indonesia, at the Wellington Festival, New Zealand and the Adelaide Festival back home.

Coming from a musical family (Keith’s wife is a pianist and teaches at Ascham School, Sydney; Keith himself has also lectured privately in Singing and Adult Education), Keith confesses that his passion for music is too diverse for him to favour any particular style over another.

He begins in earnest with an Open Day on November 11. Everyone is welcome.

Creative Arts conference a unique opportunity for postgraduates

MORE THAN 80 postgraduate students and staff attended the School of Creative Arts’ Postgraduate Student Conference from September 18-21.

The conference was a unique opportunity for the diverse and widespread postgraduate student body of the school to come together and share ideas, common interests and concerns.

The school has about 90 postgraduate students and includes many prominent practising artists as well as academic staff of at least 10 other tertiary institutions.

Unlike previous years, the conference was held on campus allowing the use of various facilities (such as the Performance Space and the Long Gallery) so that a joint emphasis on practical artwork and theoretical concerns could occur.

The school’s director of postgraduate studies, Dr Andrew Schultz, said about 40 students presented their work in formats including concerts, theatre productions, readings, videos, slide shows, papers and an exhibition.

‘Participants could hardly fail to be impressed and stimulated by the extraordinary range and merit of the work presented,’ he said.
