An enthusiastic band of students, scouts, neighbouring residents and some staff gathered in Northfields Ave on Sunday 6 March to show their support for maintaining the now famous beauty of the campus and to raise awareness about disposing of litter thoughtfully.

As part of Clean Up Australia Day, the student-run Environment Society organised a ‘clean up the University and surrounding streets’ campaign.

Forty bags of litter were collected in just a few hours which showed what a continuous and difficult job the University’s Buildings and Grounds branch has on a daily basis to keep the grounds at their high standard.

Among those lending a hand were Gabrielle Leahy and Damien Cahill from the Environment Society, and Professors Rob Whelan and David Griffiths.

Professor Griffiths was wearing two hats, one as a University staff member and also as Convenor of the Area 5 Neighbourhood Committee.

(Neighbourhood committees were set up by Wollongong City Council early last year to improve the process of consultation and allow the local community to have greater input into some of Council’s decisions that affect the community. Neighborhood Committee 5 covers an area which includes the University and extends from Figtree to Mount Ousley including Mt Keira, Gwynneville and Keiraville. Professor Griffiths is a useful contact if anyone at the University needs to liaise with residents in this area.)

Please help to keep the campus clean all through the year and if you see anyone dropping or leaving rubbish give them a courteous reminder.

It all helps to raise the status of this University and consequently the status of your degree or your work place.
Dr Ted Booth of the Faculty of Education is to undertake a four-month research consultancy in Bangladesh.

Dr Booth was selected by WD Scott International through ITC to work as a consultant on the Primary Education Infrastructure Project in Bangladesh.

The consultancy is part of a wider technical assistance program for the Ministry of Education which has been funded by the Asian Development Bank.

Dr Booth's responsibility will be to collaborate with CDRB-Eduplus, the local consulting company and to supervise six research projects over a four-month period.

The projects include a study on the opportunity cost of primary school dropouts, rescheduling the school year to increase class contact hours, ways of mobilising domestic resources for primary education, a review of primary school curriculum scheduling, the effectiveness of satellite primary schools and strategies to more effectively involve local communities in primary education.

Ted will be based in Dhaka with CDRB-Eduplus, but anticipates that he will be travelling throughout Bangladesh during the consultancy.

He will be away from the University from mid March to early July.

Ron King back on campus

Professor Ron King has returned to the Faculty of Education after a two-year secondment to the National Board for Employment, Education and Training (NBEET) in Canberra with special responsibility for higher education.

The position required the formulation of independent policy advice to the government.

As well as teaching, his role within the Faculty will include the preparation of submissions to the Department of Employment, Education and Training (DEET), national boards and other granting agencies in the areas of physical education, science and health.

Head of Philosophy

Dr Robert Dunn has been appointed as Head, Department of Philosophy as from 1 March.

He held this position from 1990 to 1993 when the previous head, Professor Lauchlan Chipman, was appointed Pro Vice-Chancellor.

Dr Dunn joined the University in 1985 as a temporary lecturer in Philosophy.

He graduated from the University of Queensland with first class honours and won the University Medal in 1974.

He was awarded his doctorate from the same university in 1983 for a thesis entitled Motivation, and the Possibility of Weakness of Will: An Essay in Philosophical Psychology and the Philosophy of Language.

He has since received international recognition and awards for his work in this and associated areas of Philosophy.
New accommodation and employment service has answers

The new Accommodation and Casual Employment Office has opened in the Union Building (next door to the IMB). The University of Wollongong Casual Employment Service is a new initiative and is provided by the University free of charge to its students.

The service tries to provide students with access to casual and part-time employment.

Casual Employment Officer, Michelle Carden, has already been contacted by several people from the community who need help from students.

Positions have included gardening, cleaning, babysitting, tutoring, tennis coaching, swimming instructing and even counting cars in car parks!

The Employment Service is always looking for casual work for students. Examples of the many jobs students can do include domestic duties, gardening, sales and promotional work, clerical work, tutoring, babysitting, waitering and bar work.

The Accommodation Office aims to assist both staff and students in finding temporary or permanent accommodation in the private sector.

The office also provides students with information about on-campus accommodation and offers an airport collection service for new international arrivals.

For more information on either accommodation or casual employment phone Ms Carden, 21 4622.

Pamper your visitors at University Lodge

The University Lodge, just east of Kooloobong off Northfields Ave, has been in operation since late last year.

It is specifically for the use of guests and speakers at the University.

If your department is hosting a conference or function, make your guests feel pampered and ensure that they can conduct their business in the most pleasant environment possible.

Guests can receive fully catered meals delivered to their suite, use the campus facilities available, or cater for themselves with the cooking facilities provided. (Not available in the studio rooms).

There is also a spacious private dining and lounge area in the lodge which is designed to be a venue for social use. It contains a CD player, magazines and newspapers and is fully catered if necessary.

A wide range of food and refreshments is available including a breakfast menu of cereals, juices, croissants and other pastries, and papers are delivered in the morning with breakfast.

Lunch and dinner menus range from assorted sandwiches to full catering in the dining/lounge room.

Lunch and dinner menus are also available in a picnic package. A picnic at the Botanical Gardens may be a relaxing alternative.

There is a mini bar and snacks available with tea, coffee and biscuits, and flowers can be delivered.

The Lodge also provides a wide range of additional services such as car hire facilities, chauffeur limousine service, phones, fax, secretarial service, television, board games, access to computers, and the VIP rooms have full kitchen facilities.

Learning Centre’s SAS courses

The Learning Development Centre is offering several introductory SAS courses for 200 and 300 level students and for honours, postgraduates and staff. The 200 and 300 level course will cover coding data, writing programs to read raw data and basic statistical procedures. This course is designed for people who are undertaking courses using SAS. The introductory SAS course for honours and postgraduate students and staff is designed for people about to analyse research data. This course will cover coding data, writing programs to read raw data, basic statistical procedures and an introduction to permanent SAS data sets. For both courses there will be 8-10 hours of classes. If a participant is not able to attend the first three sessions they are advised not to enrol. These courses assume no previous computing or SAS knowledge. A charge of $20 per student and $100 per staff will be made. The introduction course for 200 and 300 level students will be run on Wednesdays 20 April, 27 April, 4 May and 11 May from 1.30-3.30pm in Building 43, Lab 2. The honours, postgraduate and staff course will be held on Wednesdays 25 May, 1 June, 8 June and 15 June from 1.30-3.30 pm in Building 43, Lab 2. The centre is also holding a two-hour workshop on the introduction to the SAS database module FSP. The workshop is open to SAS users who have completed the Extended Introduction to SAS or to people who know how to use Permanent SAS data sets. This workshop will be held on Wednesday 18 May from 1.30-3.30 pm in Building 43, Lab 2. All courses will be run provided sufficient students enrol. To obtain further information about this course or to enrol in the workshops, either:
• ring the Learning Development Centre, ext. 3977 or 4058; or,
• send an e-mail message to Anne Porter.

1994 Australian Universities Games

Sunday 25th - Friday 30th September

The Australian Universities Games requires up to 200 volunteers to assist in the organisation and efficient running of the Games. We require staff and students from all areas of the university, and people from the Illawarra region (sporing or not), for a huge sporting extravaganza.

Work Available: The Games will require people to be involved in numerous ways. The divisions are listed below; some positions may be rewarded financially. Each of the positions will have a job description and require individuals to be committed to their job requirements. Each volunteer will be trained and given assistance and direction in their activities.

Divisions: Administration, Operations, Marketing, Sport, Social, and Ceremonies.

Benefits: Volunteers for the Games will gain:

1. Practical experience valuable in gaining future employment.
2. An attractive uniform to keep.
3. A written reference at the completion of all tasks as outlined in JD.
4. Gain from being part of a committed work team.
5. A further enhancement of your Resume
6. Enjoyment and fulfillment of the event itself.
7. Concessions on social passes and social events.
8. For some PE and Human Movement courses being a volunteer may be part of a subjects requirements, so get involved.

How do you sign up?: To join our team of volunteers simply go to the front desk of the Recreation and Sports Association (RSA) and fill in a volunteers form and you will be listed on our volunteers register. You will then be informed of the first training and information night.

For more details phone Mary or Steve at the RSA on 23 1266

NOW EVERYONE KNOWS

Wollongong has been ranked with the top nine national universities by the Federal Government. It is the only regional university to gain this distinction and it also stands out as being the only medium sized institution in a group consisting mainly of the older, principal universities in each capital city.
Details next week.
