The historic marker erected by the Rotary Club of Bulli at the point at Bulli/Woonona known variously as Flat Rock, Collins Rocks, Collins Point and now confirmed by the Central Mapping Authority as Collins Rock, to celebrate the Captain Cook Bi-centenary of his first attempted landing in Australia has lost its gilt inscription through action of wind and water.

The Bulli Rotary Club has advised our society that it intends to restore the marker; the work to be carried out by the Community Service Committee in the near future.

The monument is visited by many bus loads of visitors to Illawarra and of Illawarra school students regularly and serves a very valuable purpose for tourists and historical study.

Captain Cook was there on April 28, 1770.
