Tweeting the election: from gaffe gags to breaking news

Marcus O'Donnell
University of Wollongong, marcuso@uow.edu.au

Publication Details
O'Donnell, M. (2013). Tweeting the election: from gaffe gags to breaking news. The Conversation, (05 September)
Tweeting the election: from gaffe gags to breaking news

Abstract
The next 24 hours will still bring heavy campaigning, but as election 2013 begins to warp it is time to look over various aspects of the campaign. The Storify below is an overview of some of the ways Twitter has been used in the campaign by journalists, voters and political players.

Keywords
election, gaffe, tweeting, news, gags, breaking

Disciplines
Arts and Humanities | Law

Publication Details
O'Donnell, M. (2013). Tweeting the election: from gaffe gags to breaking news. The Conversation, (05 September)

This journal article is available at Research Online: http://ro.uow.edu.au/lhapapers/1571
Tweeting the election: from gaffe gags to breaking news

Marcus O'Donnell, University of Wollongong

The next 24 hours will still bring heavy campaigning, but as election 2013 begins to warp it is time to look over various aspects of the campaign. The Storify below is an overview of some of the ways Twitter has been used in the campaign by journalists, voters and political players.

Marcus O'Donnell does not work for, consult to, own shares in or receive funding from any company or organisation that would benefit from this article, and has no relevant affiliations. This article was originally published on The Conversation.