

2007

Impacts of Economic Globalisation on Human Rights in Australia's Foreign Policy : A Case Study of East Timor

Hiromi Koizumi
University of Wollongong

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ro.uow.edu.au/theses>

University of Wollongong

Copyright Warning

You may print or download ONE copy of this document for the purpose of your own research or study. The University does not authorise you to copy, communicate or otherwise make available electronically to any other person any copyright material contained on this site.

You are reminded of the following: This work is copyright. Apart from any use permitted under the Copyright Act 1968, no part of this work may be reproduced by any process, nor may any other exclusive right be exercised, without the permission of the author. Copyright owners are entitled to take legal action against persons who infringe their copyright. A reproduction of material that is protected by copyright may be a copyright infringement. A court may impose penalties and award damages in relation to offences and infringements relating to copyright material.

Higher penalties may apply, and higher damages may be awarded, for offences and infringements involving the conversion of material into digital or electronic form.

Unless otherwise indicated, the views expressed in this thesis are those of the author and do not necessarily represent the views of the University of Wollongong.

---

Recommended Citation

Koizumi, Hiromi, Impacts of Economic Globalisation on Human Rights in Australia's Foreign Policy : A Case Study of East Timor, M.A.-Res. thesis, History and Politics, University of Wollongong, 2007.
<http://ro.uow.edu.au/theses/650>

NOTE

This online version of the thesis may have different page formatting and pagination from the paper copy held in the University of Wollongong Library.

UNIVERSITY OF WOLLONGONG

COPYRIGHT WARNING

You may print or download ONE copy of this document for the purpose of your own research or study. The University does not authorise you to copy, communicate or otherwise make available electronically to any other person any copyright material contained on this site. You are reminded of the following:

Copyright owners are entitled to take legal action against persons who infringe their copyright. A reproduction of material that is protected by copyright may be a copyright infringement. A court may impose penalties and award damages in relation to offences and infringements relating to copyright material. Higher penalties may apply, and higher damages may be awarded, for offences and infringements involving the conversion of material into digital or electronic form.

Impacts of Economic Globalisation on Human Rights in Australia's Foreign Policy : A Case Study of East Timor

A thesis submitted in fulfilment of the requirements for the award of the degree

Masters – Research

from

UNIVERSITY OF WOLLONGONG

by

Hiromi Koizumi

Master of Arts, University of Wollongong

History and Politics Program, CAPSTRANS
2007

Thesis Certification

CERTIFICATION

I, Hiromi Koizumi, declare that this thesis, submitted in fulfilment of the requirements for the award of Master – Research, in School of History and Politics, and CAPSTRAN University of Wollongong, is wholly my own work unless otherwise referenced or acknowledged. The Document has not been submitted for qualifications at any other academic institution.

Hiromi Koizumi

22 August 2007

CONTENTS

Introduction	1
Chapter 1. Human Rights, Foreign Policy and Globalisation	15
Chapter 2. Human Rights and Foreign Policy in Australia	58
Chapter 3. A balance between Australia's strong economic concerns and human rights: A case study – negotiations over maritime boundaries in the Timor Sea	111
Conclusion	161
Bibliography	173

MAP

3.1	Australia-Indonesia Boundaries (Seabed 1972, Fisheries 1981 and EEZ 1997)	117
3.2	The Timor Treaty Gap	119
3.3	Disputable maritime boundary	144

TABLES

2.1	Australian Prime Ministers and Ministers for Foreign Affairs and Trade, 1972 to 1996	61
2.2	International human rights law: Australian legislation	68-69
2.3	Australian contribution to OECD aid program	97
2.4	Comparison of AusAID - policing and security	106
3.1	Revenues of East Timor and Australia	151
3.2	Economic indicators in East Timor	152

Abbreviations

ALP	Australian Labor Party
APEC	Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation
AusAID	Australian Agency for International Development
CMATS	Treaty on Certain Maritime Arrangements in the Timor Sea
DAC	Development Assistance Committee
DIMIA	Department of Immigration and Multicultural and Indigenous Affairs
EEZ	Exclusive Economic Zone
ETTA	East Timor Transitional Administration
GDP	Gross Domestic Product
ICCPR	International Covenant of Civil and Political Rights
ICJ	International Court of Justice
ICESR	International Covenant on Social and Economic Rights
IMF	International Monetary Fund
INTERFET	International Force East Timor for Peace Enforcement
IUA	International Utilization Agreement
JPDA	Joint Petroleum Development Area
MNC	Multinational Corporation
MOU	Memorandum of Understanding
NATO	North Atlantic Treaty Organization
NCC	National Consultative Council
NGO	Non-government organization
ODA	Official Development Assistance

OECD	Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development
SAP	Structural Adjust Force
TFET	Trust Fund for East Timor
TNI	Indonesian Armed Forces
TST	Timor Sea Treaty
UDHR	Universal Declaration of Human Rights
UN	United Nations
UNAMET	United Nations Mission in East Timor
UNCLOS	United Nations Convention of the Law of the Sea
UNDP	United Nations Development Programme
UNHCR	United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees
UNTAET	United Nations Transitional Administration in East Timor
WTO	World Trade Organization
ZOC	Zone of Cooperation

Abstract

The purpose of this thesis is to explore the complex relationships between Australia's approaches to human rights (HR) and to globalisation. This thesis examines the ways in which global economic activity, otherwise called economic globalisation, has influenced or determined Australia's foreign policy with regards to HR. This research investigates the complex relationships between Australia's Human Rights in its foreign policy and globalisation since the 1970s, by exploring the interaction between ongoing globalisation and Australian foreign policy. Its central argument is that Australia's foreign policy with regards to HR has been compromised by globalisation in the pursuit of its own national economic interests. Australia's lack of morality under its foreign policy has failed to take a state's moral obligation with regard to human rights, as international human rights principles and agreements require.

This thesis critically analyses a nexus between the support and promotion of the HR approaches of Australian foreign policies since the 1970s on the one hand, and Australia's enthusiastic embrace of economic globalisation, on the other. It is argued that Australian foreign policy has been aimed at establishing an approach toward globalisation which gives priority to national business interests. This has resulted in inconsistent approaches to HR, especially with regards to Australia's nearest neighbour, East Timor. By exploring approaches of Australian Governments with regards to HR, especially some maritime boundary treaties of the Timor Sea that Australia has conducted and concluded, this thesis examines and shows the way in which Australian foreign policy has been shaped by economic global views, which in turn have had increasingly adverse effects on its international human rights policies. The case study of Australia's policies on East Timor reveal increasing inconsistency between HR principles and actions.

Acknowledgements

I would like to acknowledge to everyone who supported and encouraged me for this thesis.

Thank you very much to Dr. Greg Melleuish, the primary supervisor of my thesis for good suggestions and inspiring me over the line to undertake my thesis. It was such pleasure that Greg showed me what is an academic task, with his insightful advice.

Very special thanks to Professor, Adrian Vickers, my second supervisor of my thesis for long time. I could not produce my thesis without his support in providing insightful advice, valuable comments, helpful guidance, and much encouragement. It is deeply appreciated.

Thank you very much to Dr. Kate Hannan, my previous supervisor, for her support and wise suggestions in undertaking my research into Australian foreign policy and human rights. Also many thanks to Dr. Di Kelly for looking after me at the final stage.

Thanks to those who read and checked my English ; Dr. Ken Mclean who totally supported me. Ken checked not only English but also suggested my thesis line and advised researching. Thanks to Peter Cusack for much support. Many thanks also to Fiona Sampson, who is also my close friend, who supported and encouraged me over time.

Thanks to many colleagues in this university for advice and encouragement. Many thanks to Susan Engel, who was so kindly to offer advice and encourage and also to Ross Tapsell, who shared my office before, for great encouragement and help.

Thanks to many friends in both Australia and Japan for keeping good friendships. Thanks to my families in both Japan and Brazil for their kindly support over time. Finally, very special thanks to my lovely daughters, Hanae and Tamae for their enormous love, support and patience. I would like to devote my thesis to my dead husband.